

'Hitler Peace' Ruled Out in Mutual Pledge By Roosevelt, Churchill To Crush Nazis And Establish Security Throughout World

FIRST PICTURE FROM ROOSEVELT-CHURCHILL PARLEY—
While the world wondered where they were and what they were doing, President Roosevelt and British Prime Minister Churchill (seated right) met somewhere in the Atlantic and evolved their eight-point statement of war and peace aims, with Army, Navy and economic chieftains there to advise them. This picture, made aboard the British battleship Prince of Wales, one of the pursuers of the ill-fated German Bismarck, was released by the White House yesterday with the following identification: standing (left to right), Harry Hopkins, lease-lend administrator; W. Averell Harriman, lease-lend co-ordinator in London; Admiral E. J. King, commander of the U. S. Atlantic fleet; General George Marshall, U. S. chief of staff; General Sir John G. Dill, chief of the Imperial British staff; Admiral Harold R. Stark, U. S. chief of naval operations; Admiral Sir Dudley Pound, first sea lord of Britain.

Disarmament Of Aggressors Post-War Aim

Freedom Promised Occupied Nations in Meeting on High Sea.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—(AP)—In a dramatic climax to a series of secret political and military talks at sea, President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill today ruled out any peace with Hitler Germany, sketched the framework of a new world order and indicated far-reaching steps were planned to crush "the Nazi tyranny."

Unannounced, but strongly implied in a momentous joint declaration, was agreement on high points of strategy to meet new Axis threats on a far-flung world front—in the east, in the west and in sprawling and struggling Russia.

The leaders of the two great western powers gave no hint that the United States had been assigned any immediate part other than as "the arsenal of democracy" in a stepped-up effort to win the war against the Axis.

Time, Place Secret.

But neither was there any indication from their pronouncement that the United States would remain indefinitely on a "short-of-war" basis in "the steps which their countries are respectively taking for their safety in the face of these dangers."

There seemed little doubt that their conversations had included exhaustive discussions of the general military situation.

Lending weight to this presumption was the disclosure, also by the White House, that among those at the conference were:

Sumner Welles, undersecretary of state; General George C. Marshall, United States chief of staff; Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations; Harry L. Hopkins, lease-lend administrator; W. Averell Harriman, who has been handling lease-lend affairs at London; Admiral Ernest J. King, commanding the Atlantic fleet of the United States; Admiral Sir Dudley Pound, first sea lord of Britain; and General Sir John Greer Dill, chief of the Imperial British staff.

Time, Place Secret.

The time and place of the historic conferences, which rivaled or surpassed in world interest the Brenner Pass meetings of Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini, remained secret.

The joint announcement in Washington and London said merely that the President and Prime Minister "have met at sea" and "have held several conferences."

The joint statement issued by the White House here and broadcast in London by Major Clement Attlee, Lord Privy Seal, ended 10 days of mystery and speculation concerning the President and Prime Minister Churchill and the possibility of a historic meeting at sea.

Not since last Saturday had the Navy released any dispatches from the high seas.

Prisoner Dies After 12 Hours In Dade County 'Sweat Box'

Men Who Told Probers About Conditions Punished.

A legislative committee investigating conditions in Georgia prisons last night reported that camps who testified before the committee Monday about conditions in the Rising Fawn camp in Dade county were among those confined in a sweat box for 12 hours Tuesday, which allegedly resulted in the death of a prisoner.

Other swift developments in the prison camp situation were:

1. A "break" at the Dallas, Ga., camp, known as "Little Alcatraz," in which seven prisoners escaped, including the notorious Forrest Turner and S. L. (Slim) Scarborough.
2. Announcement by the legislative committee that C. A. Jacobson, warden of the Dade county camp, had been fired because he allegedly confined a group of convicts in a cramped space.
3. Sensational disclosures in the committee's report, which brought from that body the conclusion that conditions at the Rising Fawn camp were "very bad."
4. The committee's announcement it had found "strong evidence"

500 Benning 'Chutists Invade Atlanta; Idolized by Small Boys

By HAROLD MARVIN.

The American small boy has found himself another hero to worship.

The aviator who flies the plane has been replaced as an idol, all of a sudden, by the men who go up with him and jump out to float down by parachute.

The men of the 501st Parachute Battalion, Uncle Sam's sky soldiers from Fort Benning, found this out yesterday when they rolled into town 500 strong to attend the world premiere of the picture, "Parachute Battalion," at the Fox, which they helped to make, to stuff themselves on fried chicken at the Biltmore while sweet music played, and to trip the light fantastic at the city auditorium afterward with 300 lovely young women whom the USO provided. It was quite a show as the boys came rolling in at the Terminal on their special train. They fell out smartly and lined up in company formation under the sheds, and the officers walked up and down in front of them making little speeches.

One of them went like this: "Look here, you men. I want you to have a good time while you are here tonight. But I don't want to catch one of you getting sloppy drunk. Get off side and you are headed for trouble. You noncommissioned officers are responsible for the conduct of your men. Keep 'em straight."

"Now, smarten up your personal appearance. Take off those caps and smooth 'em out and put 'em on at the right angle. Stuff in those shirts. Look smart. At ease."

The boys didn't disappoint their officers. They behaved perfectly from dinner at the Biltmore right on through until the band at the auditorium struck up "Home Sweet Home."

Fares Reduced Between Here And Marietta

Railway Granted 20-Cent Rate for 90-Day Trial.

Fares between Atlanta and Marietta have been reduced from 35 cents a single one-way trip to 20 cents under permission granted by the Georgia Public Service Commission to the Atlanta Northern Railway, which connects this city and Marietta.

The new fares will be for a 90-day trial period, Walter McDonald, chairman of the commission, said. He added the new rates will become effective as soon as the railway adjusts its facilities to the change.

Books of tickets in lots of 12 may be purchased at the new rate of 16 cents each, or $1.92, compared with 18.75 cents each under the old rates, or $2.15.

The railway asserted in its application to the commission that in view of the fact that it was impossible to reduce operating costs and the company has suffered heavy losses in patronage due largely to the competition of the private automobile, the lower rates were innovative as a means of popularizing the service.

The application stated that the trial period would last for 90 days,

'Patriotism Pays Big Dividends,' Small Sub-Contractor Declares

Foundry Operator Is Doing His Bit To Help Defense.

(Editor's Note: This is the second in a series by Constitution staff writers about small Georgia manufacturers who are taking government contracts, expanding their business and keeping skilled Georgia labor and money at home.)

By JIM FURNESS.

"Patriotism can pay good dividends," said Ernest Baldwin, surveying hundreds of iron castings produced for national defense by the Spalding Foundry Company, of which he is the general manager, down on Mecasin street just off North Side drive.

"About a year ago, I figured that we might have trouble getting iron for our regular customers so I scouted around digging up defense subcontracts and it's paid plenty," he added.

He stopped to watch a young fellow in dirty overalls measure out a moulding for the door of a cooking range on its way to Camp Croft. Next to him another young man brushed the sand from one of the completed mouldings in preparation for casting one of the doors with white-hot iron being

Chatsworth Woman Convicted Second Time on Murder Charge

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

CHATSWORTH, Ga., Aug. 14.—Mrs. Eula Elrod Thompson, perhaps the first woman in Georgia ever to be convicted twice on a murder charge, today was for a second time in her life, sentenced to life imprisonment in the penitentiary.

She was convicted today by a Murray county jury of murder in connection with the fatal stabbing of her brother, Walker Elrod, near here last June 2. The jury returned a verdict of murder, with recommendation for mercy, and Judge John C. Mitchell sentenced her to life imprisonment.

Hers was the second conviction in the Elrod slaying. Virgil Scott, who it was claimed accompanied the Thompson woman to the home of her father, Abner Elrod, about 12 miles south of here, yesterday was convicted and given a life sentence.

A third defendant, Kermit Pritchett, faces trial tomorrow in the same case.

Mrs. Thompson was convicted in 1928 here in the same courthouse of the murder of Coleman

Osborn, a Murray county merchant, and she was sentenced to die in the electric chair, being the first woman ever to be sentenced to the electric chair in Georgia.

Mrs. Thompson's husband, Cliff Thompson, and Jim Hugh Moss, a Negro, were also convicted of the murder of Osborn and both were electrocuted at the state farm at Milledgeville in 1928.

Cloudy skies and a light but steady rain all day gave Atlantans a brief respite from the heat yesterday, but the mercury is headed upward again today.

The temperature extremes forecast for today are 70 for the minimum and 86 for the maximum, as compared to yesterday's 70 and 80 low and high.

Prison Board Fires Warden After Prisoner Dies in Dade

By LUKE GREENE
Staff Writer.

TRENTON, Ga., Aug. 14.—C. A. Jacobson, warden of the Rising Fawn prison camp, was fired by two members of the State Prison and Parole Board after he had admitted at a hearing this afternoon in the Dade county camp that he had placed 22 Negro prisoners in a small dungeon or sweat box seven and one-half feet square for approximately eight hours, after which one of them, Lewis Gordon, died.

Judge Clem Rainey, chairman of the board, and Royal K. Mann, commissioner, went to the Dade county camp today to investigate the death of the Negro convict.

After questioning guards and prisoners for about four hours, the commissioners announced their decision to fire Jacobson and to make J. O. Gass, supply and cost clerk at the camp, acting warden. Rainey said Gass and R. S. Mundy, department warden, would be in charge of the camp pending the appointment of a permanent warden.

This investigation in Dade county was believed to be the first steps by the commission to clean up the prison camps of the state. Testimony taken during the investigation, held in the little one-room prison shack that served as the warden's office, revealed that 25 Negro convicts mutilated Tuesday afternoon, the day after the legislative committee had made its investigation of the camp.

Guards said that when they were forced back to the prison truck for hauling back to camp, Warden Jacobson and Roy M. Whitehead shot three Negroes in the ankles and knees when they refused to obey.

Whitehead said he shot when the Negro picked up a rock to throw at him.

Further testimony of guards disclosed to commissioners that Jacobson finally got the Negroes on the truck and back to camp where they were confined in solitary, jammed close together in a dungeon with only two small air vents.

It was brought out that the prisoners were put in the dungeon at 1 or 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon and were kept there until 8 or 8:30 o'clock. They were given bread and water a little before they were turned out.

Guards said some of the men fell on each other, weak from suffocation, as they walked out.

The warden testified:

"When I went out there I realized it was too hot for them in there."

Admits Mistake.

The red-faced, bespectacled warden told commissioners he didn't know it was that hot. I see it was a mistake after it is over. I didn't intend to keep them there long and they didn't stay long."

Jacobson said Gordon was unconscious when he was brought out of the dungeon. He was revived temporarily with an alcoholic rub and "two or three spoonfuls of whiskey."

"I thought he had only fainted," Jacobson told the prison commissioners. "I sent after a doctor immediately. He got there at 11 o'clock. The prisoner died at 2 a. m."

Jacobson admitted firing once or twice at the prisoners after getting them back to the camp and while waiting for them to change from their work clothes to night-shirts before being put into the sweatbox. He said they were only blanks.

Blames Workers.

The warden testified he had noticed a tendency for the prisoners to be dissatisfied for the past two or three weeks and that he thought people "working here were responsible for the dissatisfaction."

It was brought out that a former guard, J. L. Malcolm, was discharged last Saturday.

It was further said the visit of the legislative committee Monday was not the cause of the mutiny.

Mann said after the inquiry that he thought the mutiny had been well handled, but both he and Rainey refused to comment on the placing of the men in the dungeon.

Not Working.

"The testimony will speak for itself," they said.

The prisoners were not worked today. The reason given to the commissioners was that they feared more trouble and did not want to take action until they knew what action the commission would take.

Mann talked to prisoners in the barracks after the hearing and told them that mutiny was bad business, cautioning them not to strike again but to write the prison board when they had complained.

G. C. Tatum, Dade county sheriff, said that he did not plan to swear out warrants in connection with the Gordon death or to make any arrests. Action will be left up to the September grand jury.

NEW LOAN PLAN TO SUIT NEEDS OF ANY BORROWER

Amounts and Terms Can Vary to Meet Individual Requirements.

To meet the changing conditions of individual family financial needs, a series of different loan plans have been announced by one of Atlanta's leading financial institutions.

Under this plan, each borrower can specify whether he wants to repay the loan in a few months, twelve full months, or where very small payments are desired, lower repayments can be arranged up to two years.

Such type loans are all made at legal interest rates in amounts from fifty dollars, several hundred dollars, or up to several thousand dollars. Loans can be made on just a plain note, or an automobile, or furniture, endorsement, or other reasonable security.

The plan is made flexible so as to meet the needs of any varying needs or condition.

The money may be needed for some emergency, to pay old debts, to make improvements, for business expansion, or any other purpose. Readers of this advertisement who are interested in such a well-balanced loan plan are cordially invited to visit the offices of the Southern Security and Investment Corporation, which is on the fourth floor of the 22 Marietta Street Building at the corner of Marietta and Broad Streets.

Any financial problem can be discussed without obligation and in strictest confidence with the assurance that a real effort will be made by "Southern Security" to help find the right answer.

Almand, chairman of the senate group.

Prisoner Dies After Stay in 'Sweat Box'

dence" that a Negro convict at the Sparta camp had died as the result of a beating.

5. A recommendation for abolishing the "sweat box."

Victim Recognized.

Senator R. E. Cannon, of Clayton, vice chairman of the joint committee on prisons of the house and senate, said the group met last night to discuss the new developments at Rising Fawn camp, in which one convict was suffocated and others beaten since their visit there Monday.

Members of the committee, which heard the testimony of 20 or more convicts Monday, said they recognized victims of Tuesday's example of prison barbarity in newspaper photographs as having been witnesses of whom they had promised protection.

They expressed regret that their promise had proved vain. Members of the committee will report to the Prison Commission and to other authorities today, that they had found conditions at Rising Fawn "very bad."

Evidence Found.

The committee also found "strong evidence" that Slam Bell, Negro prisoner at the Sparta public works camp, had died as a result of "severe whippings."

After conducting an inquiry into conditions at Sparta, the committee went to Reidsville to question prisoners transferred there since the death of Bell and to probe the death of Pee Wee Burns, Atlanta racketeer.

They found that Burns died, as reported by the coroner, as the result of a brawl after he and other prisoners had stolen a quantity of alcohol.

As the outcome of their investigation, the joint committee will recommend today that the sweat box be abolished in Georgia.

Prisoners Frightened.

"Boss, if we tell you anything about this camp, we'll catch hell," Senator Cannon reported one Negro as telling his committee Monday. He quoted another witness as saying:

"Be! I'm scared for you to leave me here for I'll be killed."

The following day, at least some of the witnesses were put into a tiny, pitch-dark building, with only one vent, for many hours.

Twenty-two convicts were put in this building. One, Lewis Gordon, 40, was found yesterday by the Dade coroner's jury to have died as the result of the day-long "sweating."

Yesterday's investigation was touched off by State Prison Investigator Claude Mayne, who went to Rising Fawn at the behest of Representative John L. Mavity, chairman of the house committee.

Daily Investigation.

The joint committee, which had promised immunity from punishment for testifying to the convicts Monday, had requested Representative Mavity to look into conditions and to have the camp visited daily.

On his way to the camp, Investigator Mayne stopped a hearse which he found contained the body of Lewis Gordon. He immediately began a probe and called in Coroner W. A. Tidwell.

Coroner Tidwell said that Warden C. A. Jacobson told the coroner's jury the 22 Negroes were confined in the 7 by 7 1/2-foot sweatbox after they had staged a sitdown strike and had advanced on him and a guard, menacing them with rocks.

No criminal charges were filed against the warden, but the coroner's jury decided that Gordon "came to his death due to cruel and inhuman treatment at the hands of the warden of this camp."

Coroner Tidwell reported that a disturbance broke out in the mass confinement of the convicts in the sweatbox and "three of the prisoners were shot and wounded and the remaining 22 of the original

25 were crowded into a small building Tuesday between 1 and 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon and held until 8-8:30 o'clock that night."

While Georgia's much-investigated prison system was again being probed seven convicts at the state's "Little Alcatraz" at Dallas decided it was a good time to make a break for freedom. The seven included the notorious jailbreakers, Forrest Turner and Slim Scarborough. Bloodhounds were put on their trails.

The other escapes were listed as Hubert Dickinson, Burrell Crews, Frank Long, Mack Green and S. M. Miles.

Five of the men escaped in a pick-up truck and two others fled on foot. The men in the truck were gone several hours before they were discovered to be missing, it was said, as officers at first thought only those who had fled on foot were gone.

Airplanes Used.

Airplanes were brought into use to drop leaflets on communities, telling of the escapes and giving descriptions of the convicts.

The two who escaped from the road working crew were Cruze and Dickinson.

As soon as Cruze and Dickinson escaped, guards notified the prison camp and state patrol officials in Atlanta. Their escape was immediately broadcast over the patrol's radio, and the patrolmen participating in the airplane search at Douglasville immediately left for Dallas, a distance of about 20 miles.

With patrolmen and prison guards searching the highways, and all neighboring roads, a small red airplane flew low over the county dropping notes.

Suggested Checkup.

A crew of patrolmen went to the prison camp shortly after 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon seeking further information about Cruze and Dickinson. While talking with the guard on duty in the prison yard, one of the patrolmen suggested that a checkup be made on those present in the camp.

As a result of the checkup, it was learned that the five other convicts had escaped from the camp. Further investigation revealed that a light pickup truck was missing from the prison yard.

The legislative committee investigating conditions at Rising Fawn, at the Sparta camp and at Reidsville will make its report to the prison commission today.

The senate members are: Senator E. L. Almand, of Monroe, chairman; Senator R. E. Cannon, of Clayton, vice chairman; O. W. Hill, of Greenville, and H. T. Barnhill, of Homerville. The house members are: Representatives H. B. Smith, of Barrow county; T. J. Wells, of Telfair county; and C. Z. Harden, of Turner county.

Makes Statement.

On behalf of the joint committee, and holding in his hand a two-ounce piece of cornbread which he said was the 24-hour ration with a cup of water for a man confined in a sweat box, Senator Cannon made the following statement to The Constitution:

"We went to Rising Fawn Camp Monday to investigate rumors about conditions in that camp. We found conditions very bad. We interrogated 20 or more prisoners, several guards and outside laborers. We feel that the punishment meted out to 22 prisoners Tuesday was the aftermath of the investi-

British Agent To U. S. Killed

MONTREAL, Friday, Aug. 15. (UP)—Arthur Purvis, head of the British Purchasing Commission to the United States, has been killed in a plane crash at an airdrome in the United Kingdom, the Royal Air Force Ferry Command announced here early today.

The brief announcement said there were other fatalities and that next of kin had been notified. It gave no details as to when, where or how the accident occurred.

The names of the other victims will be published as soon as possible, it was said. All other passengers on the plane, described as a "returning transoceanic aircraft," presumably bound for Canada, were members of the Ferry Command.

Encirclement Of Soviet Ports Said Complete

Germans Announce Rain in Ukraine—May Slow Down.

By The Associated Press.

The German high command claimed yesterday that its troops and their Italian, Rumanian and Hungarian allies had completed the encirclement of Odessa and Nikolaev, the Ukrainian Black sea ports, and had reached the iron center of Krivoi Rog, only 80 miles southwest of the great Red industrial center of Dnepropetrovsk.

Krivoi Rog's fall, the Nazis claimed, lost to the Russians 61 per cent of their iron ore production.

German and allied columns, it was asserted in Berlin, reached the Black sea between the port of Odessa and the Bug river estuary in "a continuous, relentless pursuit" which had left the Red armies entrapped with their only hope an attempt to escape by sea.

On the northern front Russian forces were claimed to be entrapped by the Finns on the northern coast of Lake Ladoga and attempting to escape in transport vessels.

Despite its varying claims to success, Berlin reported—in possible anticipation of announcements of a slowing down of the Nazi drive—that it had begun to rain again in the Ukraine.

Prisoner Dies After Stay in 'Sweat Box'

gation our committee made on Monday.

"We had a list of names of prisoners selected at random. When we had them brought before us they feared to tell us anything. One said: 'Boss, if we tell you anything about this camp, we'll catch hell.' Another said: 'I'm scared for you to leave me here for I'll be killed.'"

Senator Cannon went on: "We talked to 20-odd prisoners aged from 16 to 40. All told us of inhuman treatment at the camp."

Visits Promised.

"We told the prisoners to talk freely and promised them that someone would visit that camp daily until conditions there changed and to see if they were being punished for talking to us about the conditions. We left this matter in charge of Representative John Mavity, of Walker county, which adjudge Dade, vice chairman of the Penitentiary Committee of the house.

"At Rising Fawn, we examined two Negro convicts: Tom (Big Foot) Bailey and Willie Ed Render, and found that the skin of both had been broken by the lash. Both said that they had been whipped by Warden G. A. Jacobson because they had talked to Senator Cannon and Senator Almond on a previous trip to the camp made two weeks ago.

"These 20-odd men who were put in the sweat box Tuesday included a number we recognized as being among those we interrogated Monday, August 11.

Guards Questioned.

"We interrogated a number of guards and outside laborers employed at the camp and they said that a strict investigation should be made at Rising Fawn. Some of these witnesses admitted that whippings were administered there."

Senator Cannon said that on his trip to Rising Fawn two weeks ago he had found 19 of the 119 convicts at the camp unable to work. On the way to the camp Monday, he said that he had stopped at Lafayette to speak to the Rising Fawn camp physician, Dr. S. B. Kitchens. He asked Dr. Kitchens why so many men were unable to work. He quoted Dr. Kitchens as replying:

"Men Underfed."

"The prisoners are underfed and overworked."

Senator Cannon continued his statement: "Two members of our committee, myself and Representative Harden, asked to be put in one of the sweat boxes and be treated exactly as a prisoner would be till we asked to be released. In less than five minutes we had had enough.

"A sweat box is made of heavy wood, with all cracks sealed with tar paper. It is pitch dark inside. The ones we tested were five by five feet ventilated by a two-inch pipe which was curved to prevent the admission of daylight. The man confined inside had to suck it to obtain air. The boxes vary in size at different camps.

Probe Not Complete.

"This committee had not completed its investigation at Rising Fawn because we had not been able to locate certain witnesses. We were scheduled to resume hearings at the camp on the death of a white prisoner, reported to have been shot recently while working on the 'muscle crew,' or pick and shovel squad."

"On Tuesday," Senator Cannon continued, "we visited the state public works camp in Sparta to investigate a report that a colored prisoner, Slam Bell, had been beaten to death. During our investigation we interrogated several witnesses, prisoners and guards, as well as the county physician assigned to this camp, and find strong evidence that Slam Bell did come to his death from severe whippings."

Escape Questioned.

"Before going to the camp, we questioned Sanford Crider, who escaped from the camp the day Bell died. He told us that a guard named Boss Alvin Johnson called him and another prisoner to hold four prisoners while he administered whippings with a hose pipe.

Crider escaped and came to Atlanta and gave himself up to Royal K. Mann, of the State Prison Commission, and reported conditions existing there.

"This prisoner told us of having to hold these four prisoners, one white and three colored, while Boss Johnson whipped them, stating he escaped for no other purpose but to report the same to the proper authorities.

"These statements were verified by numerous other witnesses in the Sparta camp. We also went to Reidsville to hear four more prisoners transferred from that camp since Bell's death. We found several prisoners with picks or long

Roosevelt and Churchill Meet And Adopt 8-Point Program

the presidential yacht Potomac, cruising in northern waters. Therefore President Roosevelt's activities and Winston Churchill's activities and absence from London had been equally mystifying.

The joint declaration which broke the long silence was fully as important in its omissions as in its enunciation of "certain common principles in the national policies of their respective countries on which they base their hopes for a better future for the world."

They "further examined" the whole problem of the supply of munitions of war under the lease-lend act "for the armed forces of the United States and for those countries actively engaged in resisting aggression."

The conference also covered "the supply problems of the Soviet Union."

They "considered the dangers to world civilization arising from the policies of military domination by conquest upon which the Hitlerite government of Germany and other governments associated therewith have embarked."

They "made clear the steps which their countries are respectively taking for their safety in the face of these dangers."

Then came an eight-point declaration of war aims and peace aims which bore close resemblance to the famous 14 points of President Woodrow Wilson in 1918.

In the words of Secretary of State Hull at his press conference, the statement embodied "basic principles and fundamental ideas and policies" that were "generally accepted by all civilized nations and were being strongly supported until certain countries decided to launch a universal movement to destroy the whole structure of civilized relations between nations and to establish a system of rule . . . based largely on barbarism and savagery."

The declaration of war aims closely followed a general policy statement by Secretary Hull in 1937 and also, with some elaboration, the objectives earlier proclaimed during the war by both the United States and Great Britain.

It contained in addition a virtual promise by the two great powers to police the world against "aggressor" nations for a time after the war.

The President and prime minister expressed the belief that "pending the establishment of a wider and permanent system of general security, the disarmament of such nations is essential."

They made a strong bid for support from conquered peoples and even from the German people by declaring that Britain and the United States seek no territorial or other "aggrandizement" and favor self-determination in fixing boundaries and choosing forms of government.

The eight-point declaration set out these general principles and the aims of the United States and Great Britain as a basis of "their hopes for a better future world":

MILITARY ADVISERS—All phases of the world situation were believed discussed in the historic meeting of President Roosevelt and Winston Churchill on the high seas, resulting in an eight-point program of war and peace aims. High U. S. military officials who attended the meeting are (left), Admiral Harold R. Stark, Navy operations chief, and (right), General George C. Marshall, Army chief of staff, and presumably Major General H. H. Arnold (center), chief of United States Air Forces.

1. They seek no territorial or other aggrandizement.

2. No territorial changes that do not accord with the "freely expressed wishes of the peoples concerned."

3. Respect for the right of all peoples to choose their own form of government and restoration of "sovereign rights and self-government" to those "forcibly deprived of them."

Access to Materials.

4. They will endeavor "with due respect for their existing obligations to further the enjoyment by all states, great or small, victor or vanquished, of access, on equal terms, to the trade and to the raw materials of the world which are needed for their prosperity."

5. Full collaboration among nations in the economic field aimed at improved labor standards, economic advancement and social security.

6. "After the final destruction of the Nazi tyranny, they hope to see established a peace which will afford to all nations the means of dwelling in safety within their own boundaries and which will afford assurance that all the men in all lands may live out their lives in freedom from fear and want."

7. Freedom of the seas for all nations.

Whereabouts Unknown.

8. Abandonment of the use of force, and disarmament of nations "which threaten, or may threaten, aggression outside of their frontiers" pending establishment of "a wider and permanent system of general security."

President Roosevelt's whereabouts at the time today's statement was issued was undisclosed, but it was expected in the capital that he would return this week-end. The Navy was still silent.

Whether Prime Minister Churchill was back in London also was not announced.

Where the meeting took place was a matter of speculation, some observers conjecturing that the President might have gone as far as Iceland, where both American and British occupying forces are stationed. Others speculated that Churchill flew or traveled by warship across the Atlantic and met the President, perhaps aboard a battleship off the Canadian coast.

Hopkins Present.

Harry Hopkins, the President's lease-lend administrator, who has been on a mission to London and Moscow, and W. Averell Harriman, the lease-lend administrator in London, also were reported to have been present at the conferences.

Secretary Hull hinted that a further announcement might be planned concerning Russia—a possible joint message from President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill to Premier Joseph Stalin containing assurance that all possible help was forthcoming to support resistance to Germany.

Actual steps decided on to counter Axis threats throughout the world were in the realm of high military strategy, and the President and Prime Minister gave no inkling of these.

GRAVE IMPLICATIONS SEEN IN LONDON

LONDON, Aug. 14.—(P)—Three supreme American commitments to the world—to help reconstruct post-war Europe, to support the British and Russians on every front and to aid in stripping aggressor nations of their weapons—were made in the joint declaration of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill, informed London comment held today.

These, among all others, said British informants, stood out in the eight points stating a common and solemn resolve for "a better future for the world"—a democratic manifesto to the nations and peoples of the earth.

But great and grave implications were seen as well in what was left unsaid; in what had been decided by President and prime minister in a meeting without precedent somewhere in the silences of the Atlantic.

United Stand Seen.

(The American people must stand ready to "use their armed strength as a last resort" if they endorse the Churchill-Roosevelt declaration pledging Britain and the United States to the defeat of Hitlerism, the British press was quoted by the United Press.)

Some observers called their agreement a grand united stand, extending from Malay to Alaska, which has instantly and sharply braked, if it has not actually forestalled, Japanese advances in the South Pacific and further concessions to the Nazis by Vichy France.

These observers—flushed with that spirit which moved men in London to make the frequent toast on this joyous night, "Here's to the two of us; let 'em come!"—saw it as the avowal of a mighty common front between republic and empire.

They drew three cardinal conclusions, based on their belief that the greatest results of the conference were not revealed and meant this:

1. That there had been a shaping by military, naval and air staffs of a definite strategic policy against Japan, an understanding on positive action against Vichy France, the Nazis to occupy Dakar and Casablanca in Africa, and a world-embracing strategy covering the military and air contingencies raised by the present Nazi position in Russia.

Priorities for Russia.

2. That the United States would give unstinted aid to Russia and all other powers fighting with the Allies and that Britain would waive priorities on certain classes of material to speed them to Russia.

3. That the United States and Britain would assume the police power of the world at the war's end, although all nations—including Germany—would be allowed to determine their own form of government.

It was seen as wholly probable by British sources that Japan was up for much discussion. Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill, it was believed, had determined the precise moment and circumstances under which their governments would cease passive resistance and take action against the Japanese—perhaps from British and American bases whose mutual use had been agreed upon.

Moreover, it was declared, they might well have agreed to ask Russia to open a northern front with a Siberian force of 1,000,000 men if war should break in the South Pacific.

That Dakar in French West Africa and French North Africa were more than mentioned was accepted here in some quarters, for it was stated that Churchill, long concerned over possible German moves in those directions, would have been likely to emphasize his anxiety.

The eight points were generally seen as similar in many ways to Woodrow Wilson's celebrated 14 of the last great war.

But as to point 8—that for disarmament—British authorities stressed that it was harder and more "real" than the Wilsonian approach.

Members of the British parliament likewise showed special favor for this point, for they said it meant the abandonment of the old theory of general disarmament in favor of selective disarmament of those deemed to be menaces to the world—a step toward realism lacking in Wilson's plan."

6 Believed Dead In Alaska Blast

SITKA, Alaska, Aug. 14.—(UP). An explosion blasted tons of rocks today on workmen constructing a naval air station at the southern tip of Japonski island. Six men were reported killed.

Al Hagdon, Ketchikan, seventh man of a group believed buried by the cascade of debris, was trapped under rocks. The rescue party indicated it would require all night to free him.

All of the victims were employees of the Seims-Drage-Puget Sound Construction Firm, and were working on the $5,000,000 naval air base guarding the approaches to southeastern Alaska.

Dr. T. W. Shipps, of Altadena, Cal., unlike Diogenes, did not have to look for an honest man; the honest one came to him. First, he stole Snipes' electric cigar lighter from his car. Later, apparently conscious of his misdeeds, he returned the lighter and took advantage of his second visit to repair Snipes' car, which was out of order.

Draft Extension Passes Senate, Sent to F. D. R.

Upper House Accepts Changes by Top-Heavy Vote of 37 to 19.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—(P)—By the top-heavy vote of 37 to 19, the senate today accepted house changes in the controversial Army service extension legislation and dispatched the measure to President Roosevelt.

Senate attaches said they assumed the bill would be flown to President Roosevelt at sea in order to get it on the books as quickly as possible. General George C. Marshall, the Army chief of staff, originally fixed August 1 as the deadline on which the measure could be enacted without inconvenience to the Army.

The final senate vote, terminating weeks of dispute in both houses, came after only eight minutes of debate. Although the senate originally had approved the service extension by a vote of 45 to 30, Senator Johnson, Republican, California, demanded the record vote today. "There are some of us here who are opposed to this bill," he said, "and we should have a chance to vote on it."

The measure, which passed the house Tuesday by the single-vote margin of 203 to 202, would authorize the President to hold selectees, National Guardsmen, reservists and enlisted men for 18 months beyond their present service periods. That would mean maximum service of two and a half years for selectees, Guardsmen and reservists and four and a half years for men who enlisted originally for three years.

Senators Delay Tugwell's Flight

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—(P)—The Senate Territories Committee halted Rexford Guy Tugwell's airplane trip to Puerto Rico today and summoned the appointed governor back here for questioning Monday before approving his nomination by President Roosevelt as governor of the island.

Tugwell explained from Washington today, less than an hour before the senate committee met to consider his nomination. As he left, he said he was going to take over duties as head of U. S. University of Puerto Rico, a post to which he was elected by a Puerto Rican board.

Administration Friends, Critics Laud Roosevelt-Churchill Note

Some Opponents of President's Foreign Policy Describe Eight-Point Statement as Alliance With Britain.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—(AP)—The Roosevelt-Churchill pronouncement of peace aims was warmly praised by the administration's supporters in congress—and some of its critics—but others among the opponents of the President's policies asked whether it constituted an alliance with Britain.

One of the latter group, Senator McCarran, Democrat, Nevada, asserted that the declaration was made "on the unwarranted assumption that the United States is a belligerent in this war. . . . It is tantamount to a declaration of war by this country which is the province of congress only."

Senator Brooks, Republican, Illinois, who has criticized many administration moves in the field of foreign affairs, commented, however, "The statement sounds very much like a preliminary bid for peace—which I believe an overwhelming majority of the American people would welcome, providing it is a genuine bid for peace and not a camouflage to move us into the war."

Senator Bridges, Republican, New Hampshire, declared "It's a healthy thing that such a conference was held and that the post-war aims of the two great Anglo-Saxon nations are made known at this time."

Chairman Connally, Democrat, Texas, of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said the statement embodied "principles of noble and lofty conception with which I feel sure the people of the United States will agree."

Beaverbrook Asks for Food, Tanks, Planes

Minister of Supplies Describes U. S. Bombers as 'Beautiful.'

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—(AP)—Lord Beaverbrook, who described himself as "the biggest buyer on the cuff you've ever seen," flew in from the historic Roosevelt-Churchill conference today and immediately began negotiations to secure more arms and supplies of all kinds for embattled Britain.

"We have had hundreds of millions of dollars' worth of benefit under the lend-lease program," the dynamic minister of supplies told newspapermen in a rapid-fire interview at the British embassy, "but we need more."

Lists Britain's Needs.
He named tanks, planes (particularly bombers) and food.

Lend-Lease Administrator Harry Hopkins, who recently has held discussions in London and Moscow, was also believed to have participated in the sea conferences, but Lord Beaverbrook would not confirm Hopkins' presence or shed light on any other aspect of the Roosevelt-Churchill meeting.

"You've been very generous," Beaverbrook declared sticking exclusively to supply matters, "but we need still more from you. Remember that we are engaged in a terrific conflict with an enemy that is confident, an enemy well organized, an enemy who has been preparing for years to fight. If you expect us to do as well as we have done, send us as much as you can and as swiftly as possible, under the generous terms of the lend-lease act."

Beautiful Bombers.
"Yes, we want bombers. We've had wonderful results from your beautiful American bombers. In fact I should say that the best bombers we have come from the United States."

Tanks?
"We have plenty of tank divisions and tank brigades but, despite the fact that we have produced a great many, we haven't got enough tanks. We want many."

Food?
"We're working our men very hard, long hours and on Sunday, and they require lots of food. We like—and need—bacon and beef and cheese—which our agricultural workers live on—and other food supplies. The British public is feeding much better on your account. You've been very generous. But we need more."

BEAVERBROOK PLANE'S COMPANION ILL-FATED

LONDON, Aug. 14.—(AP)—Lord Beaverbrook, British minister of supply who participated in the Roosevelt-Churchill conferences and now is in Washington, flew the Atlantic in a companion plane to that which crashed with a loss of 22 lives Sunday night, it was disclosed tonight.

Text of Announcement on Meeting of Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—(AP)—The text of the announcement on the meeting of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Winston Churchill, of Great Britain, follows:

The President of the United States and the Prime Minister, Mr. Churchill, representing His Majesty's government in the United Kingdom, have met at sea.

They have been accompanied by officials of their two governments, including high-ranking officers of their military, naval and air services.

The whole problem of the supply of munitions of war, as provided by the lend-lease act, for the armed forces of the United States and for those countries actively engaged in resisting aggression has been further examined.

Lord Beaverbrook, the minister of supply of the British government, has joined in these conferences. He is going to proceed to Washington to discuss further details with appropriate officials of the United States government. These conferences will also cover the supply problems of the Soviet Union.

DANGERS OF MILITARY DOMINATION CONSIDERED

The President and the Prime Minister have had several conferences. They have considered the dangers to world civilization arising from the policies of military domination by conquest upon which the Hitlerite government of Germany and other governments associated therewith have embarked, and have made clear the stress steps which their countries are respectively taking for their safety in the face of these dangers.

They have agreed upon the

$1,000,000 Invested In State Air Fields

More than $1,000,000 is being invested by the United States government in air field projects in Georgia, a report of Colonel Ludon D. Worsham, of the Mobile (Ala.) United States engineer district, disclosed yesterday.

The construction work being done for the Air Corps and the Civil Aeronautics Authority amounts to one-fourth of the fields being constructed in the Mobile district, which includes portions of Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Tennessee.

Candler Field, the Atlanta Municipal air field, and Lawson Field at Fort Benning are being built for eventual turning over to the Air Corps. The field being built for the CAA is in Cobb county near Marietta.

SCHOOL HEAD NAMED.

ELBERTON, Ga., Aug. 14.—The city board of education has announced the election of O. H. Joiner, of Claxton, as successor to R. E. Hood, who resigned as superintendent of the local schools to go to Brunswick. Mr. Joiner holds a degree from Duke University.

following joint declaration:

Joint declaration of the President of the United States of America and the Prime Minister, Mr. Churchill representing His Majesty's government in the United Kingdom; being met together, deem it right to make known certain common principles of their respective countries on which they base their hopes for a better future for the world.

COUNTRIES SEEKING NO AGGRANDIZEMENT

First, their countries seek no aggrandizement, territorial or other;

Second, they desire to see no territorial changes that do not accord with the freely expressed wishes of the peoples concerned;

Third, they respect the right of all peoples to choose the form of government under which they will live; and they wish to see sovereign rights and self-government restored to those who have been forcibly deprived of them;

Fourth, they will endeavor, with due respect for their existing obligations, to further the enjoyment by all states, great or small, victor or vanquished, of access, on equal terms, to the trade and to the raw materials of the world which are needed for their economic prosperity;

Fifth, they desire to bring about the fullest collaboration between all nations in the economic field with the object of securing, for all, improved labor standards, economic advancement and social security;

SEEKING FREEDOM FROM FEAR, WANT

Sixth, after the final destruction of the Nazi tyranny, they hope to see established a peace which will afford to all nations the means of dwelling in safety within their own boundaries, and which will afford assurance that all the men in all the lands may live out their lives in freedom from fear and want;

Seventh, such a peace should enable all men to traverse the high seas and oceans without hindrance;

Eighth, they believe that all of the nations of the world, for realistic as well as spiritual reasons must come to the abandonment of the use of force. Since no future peace can be maintained if land, sea or air armaments continue to be employed by nations which threaten, or may threaten, aggression outside of their frontiers, they believe, pending the establishment of a wider and permanent system of general security, that the disarmament of such nations is essential. They will likewise aid and encourage all other practical measures which will lighten for peace-loving peoples the crushing burden of armaments.

heated in a blast furnace behind him.

"Those boys are brothers, a couple of country boys I trained here myself," he said. "When Bob and John came on here a few months ago, I gave them a pretty good wage and they were glad to get it, but they learned the business in no time, so I jacked their pay a couple of times and they were tickled to death."

But John and Bob wouldn't have had a chance to be making a living doing moulding work if Baldwin hadn't realized that the government would want small companies like Spalding to do subcontract work. At present, his company is working on $17,000 worth of single purpose lathe beds. When asked how he got the contract, he replied:

"There's no trick to it. We just went out after it like we'd go out after any other new business."

About a mile from the Spalding foundry, there is a large organization called the Murray Gin Company. Several months ago, the Murray company was encouraged by the Defense Contract Service in the Federal Reserve building to submit bids on single purpose lathes, resulting in a contract for $453,000 worth.

But the Murray company couldn't make all the parts for the lathes so they subcontracted for $17,000 of lathe beds to the Spalding outfit. Soon the Spalding company will finish the lathe beds which will go to the Murray company and then the complete lathes will go into a factory making shells for national defense.

"The government is a pretty good boss," Baldwin said. "They realize you've got to make money to live so they give you a good price on the things you make for them."

Baldwin walked over to the end of the long shed where men were clearing out some old material to make room for new molds for government material. On Monday, Baldwin explained, he was putting on three new men to add to the 52 he already has working for the company.

"When I came here in 1939 there were only 25 men working here," he said. "But we've been forced to take on new men to take care of all the government defense work we've had to do."

Sam Robinson, vice president of the company, joined Baldwin and they walked over to the cupola where 20 tons of molten iron were waiting to be poured. Over 50 per cent of that iron, Robinson said, will go into government orders. And that's about the percentage of government orders that Spalding has right now.

Robinson stopped to talk with an older man who was preparing a mold of a centrifugal pump bed that would eventually go to the Navy.

"That's Lester Cox," Baldwin said. "He's been out 10 years selling pianos, but he's back now."

"And getting better every day, too," Lester said, overhearing Baldwin. Lester explained that sometimes

DEFENSE BACKBONE—White hot iron is being poured at the Spalding foundry here in Atlanta which will go into moulds to make lathe bed castings that in turn will be sent to the Murray Gin Company, where the complete lathes will be assembled. From there they will go to munitions factories manufacturing shells for the defense of the United States. Ernest Baldwin, general manager, and Sam Robinson, vice president of this small company employing only 52 men, are in charge of one of the hundreds of southern companies that can make this country safe if they will take on sub contracts to speed up national defense.

he made more money selling pianos and sometimes working for Spalding, but he "figured on staying with Spalding because the pay was more regular."

But these men wouldn't have a chance to stay on if it weren't for the Defense Contract Service. The Spalding foundry is one of the companies who got on the band wagon right at the beginning, soliciting defense contracts.

Baldwin got several prime contracts and subcontracts on his own hook, but a visit to the Defense Contract Service office in the Federal Reserve Building is bringing in most of his defense business.

Simple as That. There he talked with Ivan Sagal, industrial engineer for the service, and said, "I can make castings. What can you do for me?" Sagal went out to Mecaliss street, looked over the Spalding company's equipment and saw what Spalding could do.

"I think I may be able to help you," Sagal said. And, sure enough, not long after, he called Baldwin and said, "How would you like to make $17,000 worth of lathe bases?"

It was as simple as that. But many small companies which have not gone ahead and solicited defense subcontracts are beginning to regret it. Every metal and alloy that exists is on the priorities critical list, which means that "business as usual" is being put behind defense orders.

For instance, this morning a casket manufacturer from out of Atlanta told John B. Reeves, district manager, Priorities Field Service, that he would have to go out of business in a week because he couldn't get the metal fixtures for his caskets. This casket manufacturer would have been doing a thriving business now if he had only come into the Defense Contract Service and told Sagal he was ready and willing to take a few subcontracts to make ammunition boxes and tool chests.

"Since we started taking defense orders, we have better workmen and a better shop," Baldwin said.

He watched with the pride of a father as eight of his men started pouring white hot iron into the moulds. Sparks from the blast furnace shot out as compressed air was forced into the cupola to heat the metal, lighting up the grimy faces of the men.

"A couple of the boys told me they were going up north to work in a big foundry there that would pay them a few cents more an hour," he said. "We got to talking and I offered to raise their wages so they stayed."

"Another thing, too," he added, "the more work I get, the more I pay them and we're getting more and more work every day through the Defense Contract Service."

Robinson joined him and they hundreds of small companies throughout the south that can do the jobs the larger companies are not equipped to handle. By taking subcontracts they free the larger companies to take on more defense work and to complete it in a shorter time, thereby aiding both themselves and their country.

Miss William L. Jeter Named Acting Principal at Girls' High

Appointment Averts Open Break Within School Board Whose Chairman Reportedly Favors Miss Allie Mann.

Miss William Lamar Jeter, veteran teacher in the Atlanta public schools, yesterday was named acting principal of Girls' High school by Dr. Willis A. Sutton, city school superintendent.

Appointment of Miss Jeter to succeed Miss Mary Moore, acting principal who is retiring, ended, temporarily at least, a controversy which threatened to split the city board of education.

Several of the board members, including President Ed S. Cook, reportedly favored Miss Allie Mann, school labor leader, as Girls' High principal, but other board members were said to favor Dr. Sutton's choice of Miss Jeter.

The school board elects principals and a fight would likely have developed had Sutton made his nomination for a principal to the board.

An agreement was reached quietly among the administrative and board members for Miss Jeter to be named acting principal by the superintendent, it was reported, thus skirting any open break.

Dr. Sutton yesterday, announcing the appointment of Miss Jeter to become effective immediately, praised her as a "woman of broad culture, a graduate of Girls' High school, a descendant of pioneer Atlanta stock" and pointed out she holds A. B. and M. A. degrees after having done extensive study in the leading universities of the country. She has been a high school supervisor, assistant principal in junior highs, and has taught in the elementary schools and the Atlanta Normal Training school here.

Sutton said in his statement he was making this appointment as acting principal because of contemplated re-education of the city high schools, and because of financial straits of the school system.

German Seizures Not Recognized on Draft System Records

Uncle Sam's selective service system doesn't recognize the occupation of the conquered countries in Europe by Nazis, it was revealed yesterday.

In listing the places of their birth, draft registrants are being advised to "ignore such change of government" if their native country has been taken over by another power. Brigadier General Sion B. Hawkins, state director of selective service, said.

"Some registrants have assumed they must give the name of the conquering nation as the country of their birth. This has been particularly distasteful to those whose native lands have been victims of the Axis powers," he said.

"The trait of human nature which takes pride in one's birthplace is recognized by the selective service system. If any registrant has listed an Axis country as his native land against his will, he may amend the record."

Dinner Given At County Jail For Huddleston

Party for Newsman Is Prelude to Elk Fish Fry.

Press Huddleston, well-known newspaperman and real estate editor of The Constitution, will be hauled away to the county jail today at 1 o'clock by Councilman Howard Haire, Charles Rainer and a Constitution photographer.

The party will be guests of "Big Bill" Turner, general chef and chief bottle-washer at the jail, at a special dinner arranged for Huddleston on his 72d birthday, and also to note the kind of fish Turner is going to serve the thousands who will attend the Elks' big fish fry Saturday, September 6, at Grant park.

"Big Bill" is general chairman of the annual fish fry committee, with Rainer as one of his assistants, while Huddleston and Haire, Elk members, and the photographer will be there in a dual capacity—to enjoy the birthday dinner, and to see that The Constitution's thousands of readers shall read and know about the big fry, to which the public is cordially invited.

Proceeds from the Elk fish fry, as usual, will go into the Elks' charity fund, and much of it to the Elks' crippled children's convalescent home on Peachtree road, where 30 to 40 little boys and girls are being cared for.

Housing of Army Called Too Costly

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—(AP)—A special senate committee reported today that the Army's billion-dollar housing program was "unduly and unnecessarily" expensive, partly because of the cost-plus-fixed-fee contracts, but said that it did not contend "that any of the officials were dishonest."

Making a progress report to the senate, the committee, appointed to investigate the defense program, termed "conservative" an earlier War Department estimate that $100,000,000 could have been saved by advance planning for the 229 construction projects in which the expanded Army sought $15,000 each for alleged personal injuries suffered when the bus overturned between here and Rome.

Two Are Awarded $950 in Bus Suit

Two plaintiffs in a suit against the Southeastern Greyhound Lines were awarded a judgment totaling $950 by Judge Robert L. Russell in federal court yesterday and trial of a third suit against the transportation company started.

Judge Russell awarded M. T. Balkansan $500 and Mrs. S. Nussbaum $450. The two sought $15,000 each for alleged personal injuries suffered when the bus overturned yesterday and will be continued today.

AIRPORT IMPROVEMENT. ALBANY, Ga., Aug. 14.—(AP)—City commissioners cleared the way for further improvements by the CAA on the municipal airport, including widening of the paved runways, paving a taxi strip and installing contact lights at an estimated cost of $132,000.

'Chute' Picture Passes Main Test of Comedy

Beautiful and Thrilling
Shots Filmed at Fort Benning.

By LEE ROGERS.

I first saw "Parachute Battalion" yesterday morning sitting by myself in the cold of a screening room. It was thoroughly entertaining with Buddy Ebsen providing some honest laughs, even in this solitude. That's the supreme test of comedy.

Last night I saw "Parachute Battalion" at its world premiere amid all the fanfare common to such occasions. Its laughter was contagious and its action shots, in which the members of the real Parachute Battalion at Fort Benning took part, were spectacularly thrilling.

Those of you who did not see "Parachute Battalion" last night will find it no big show, but a very enlightening and entertaining account of what the Army's new striking force, the parachute troops, really is. In making the film under government approval at Fort Benning, Ga., RKO has worked its story in such a way as to give you a picture of the men who are the parachute troops, the cocky ones, those with fears, those who do a routine job and do it well.

Clear Details. The film could almost be used for training parachute troops, so clear a picture of the instruction details and ultimate expectations of the men does the film give. All the parachute jumps were made by the 501st Parachute Battalion, men who were guests of the theater last night to see themselves in action. The parachute scenes were beautiful with the mass jumpers against the early spring clouds of Georgia skies.

The usual love story is subordinated to the parachute troops themselves. However, there is one, with sparkled-faced Nancy Kelly playing the part of a young sergeant, Edmond O'Brien very definitely Irish, sir, and dapper, carefree Robert Preston.

O'Brien, who was here for the opening last night, plays the part of the man afraid to jump and who later turns into the hero and wins the sergeant's daughter. Harry Carey portrays the hard-boiled master sergeant to whom goes the credit for originating the Parachute Battalion.

Also in the cast are Paul Kelly, Richard Cromwell and Robert Barrat. Not big names, any of them, but all good actors. Howard Benedict produced and Leslie Goodwins directed the story written by John Twist and Major Hugh Fite, Air Corps, who was present last night.

Daylight Milk Delivery Urged To Reduce Cost

LeCraw Says Proposal Would Obviate Need for Price Raise.

Solution to the milk producers' and distributors' problem in Atlanta is daylight delivery, Mayor LeCraw asserted yesterday in announcing he will lodge further protests with the milk control board against a proposed increase in the price of milk here.

He exhibited a letter from J. J. Harris, owner of a dairy at Pelham, who declared that he thought the price of city-delivered milk should not be more than 15 cents per quart anywhere in Georgia.

Harris said he is delivering milk to his customers at 10 cents a quart and "making good money on it."

"There is too much lost motion, inefficiency and racketeering between the production scheme and the distribution scheme in lots of places," the Pelham dairyman wrote.

LeCraw asserted that producers and distributors had told him delivering milk in daylight hours would reduce their costs so much that they would not need the 3-cent-per-quart price hike they are seeking from the control board.

"It used to be necessary to deliver milk early every morning, because people didn't have the refrigeration to keep milk," LeCraw asserted.

"Now, everybody has some type of refrigeration with which they can easily keep milk 48 hours. It would be a good plan for the distributors to work out a program for delivering milk in the daytime and save the difference in cost."

The mayor declared that the city has too many distributors, anyway, covering the same territory, duplicating service. He said Detroit has only about 100 distributors to more than 300 for Atlanta.

His Wife Is 'Not Dependent,' Draft Registrant Here Claims

There are two ways of looking at this business of dependence in filling out your draft questionnaire. One Negro registrant at DeKalb Board No. 2 thinks so, anyway.

When an advisory board member was helping him to fill out his questionnaire last week, this is the conversation that ensued:

Board Member: "Are you married, Sam?" Registrant: "Yassuh."

Board Member: "Will you give me the names of your dependents?"

Registrant: "Ain't got none."

"What about your wife—isn't she your dependent?" asked the surprised board member.

"Naw suh, boss," the Negro replied. "Ah can't put no dependence in that woman."

Senate Passes New Theater Supplemental To Open Today

Defense Outlay At Cedartown

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—(AP)—The senate passed a $6,838,436,000 supplemental outlay for national defense today, after having agreed to permit President Roosevelt to spend $4,000,000 out of emergency funds for confidential purposes.

The chamber cut a net of $1,224,802,000 off the $6,838,436,000 total previously approved by the house, eliminating an item of $1,347,000,000 for the purchase of reserve tanks, antiaircraft guns, antitank guns, artillery and ammunition. This was the first substantial cut in Army or Navy requests for funds since inception of the emergency.

Offsetting this in part, the senate added $122,198,000 to the measure, $90,807,000 of which was for facilities for new Army camps. The senate concurred in the house action in voting $35,000,000 for the erection of a new War Department building in Virginia, across the Potomac river from Washington. It rejected, 28 to 20, a proposal by Senator McCarran, Democrat, Nevada, to locate the building in Washington, and defeated, 29 to 21, an amendment by Senator Taft, Republican, Ohio, to cut the cost in half.

WHO SAID NO SENTIMENT—Edmond O'Brien, the Hollywood movie star who takes a leading role in the movie "Parachute Battalion" and gets the credit for the leaps through space made by members of the 501st Battalion, wasn't supposed to attend the banquet given at the Biltmore hotel last night for the 500-odd members of the battalion, here as guests of honor for the premiere. But he just dropped in. And was nearly mobbed. The boys who wear the rubberized suits of the parachute battalion did a little movie hero worshipping, give Mr. O'Brien a thrill unexpected.

THE PARACHUTISTS—These are the boys of Uncle Sam's new striking force—the men of the 501st Parachute Battalion shown on parade yesterday afternoon down Whitehall street. It was Atlanta's first view of the crack, aggressive young army unit from Fort Benning who drop through the skies from planes all in a day's work. They did the jumps in the film.

Gas for Russia Leaves Aboard American Ship

Tanker Goes to Vladivostok in Spite of Tokyo Disapproval.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—(AP)—Harold L. Ickes, the United States secretary of interior and petroleum co-ordinator, announced today that the first shipment of aviation gasoline to Russia aboard an American tanker was leaving Los Angeles for Vladivostok, flying the United States flag.

"Other tanks will leave shortly," he said.

They must pass through Japanese waters, and Japanese spokesmen already have publicly asked the United States to send no war supplies to the Russian Pacific port, contending that they might eventually be used against Japan herself.

Left Turns Legal On 1-Way Streets

Atlanta police were notified yesterday that motorists traveling on one-way streets will be permitted to make left turns on a red signal light into the line of traffic on another one-way thoroughfare under an amended city ordinance.

The revised ordinance states that turns may be made only from the left hand lane of traffic and only after the motorist has come to a complete stop.

Mayor Urged To Slow Down Traffic Reform

Told Public Not Ready For Drive Against Jaywalking.

The traffic experts of the city want Atlanta's traffic reform plan slowed down a bit. They think it's going too fast.

A group called on Mayor LeCraw late yesterday to confer on the problems and though none would say it, it was understood the mayor was asked to "take things easy for a while."

The mayor declared war on jaywalkers at a superior officers' meeting the other day but Traffic Chief Neal Ellis said yesterday he wasn't going to order his men to make cases against every jaywalker in Atlanta.

There are too many of them.

"We need to take one thing at a time," Ellis said yesterday before the conference with the mayor or was held. "We are cracking down on speeders and reckless drivers all right, but the public isn't ready for a drive on jaywalkers. The public has got to be educated to that."

Ellis, M. L. Thomas, traffic engineer; Emmett Elliott, assistant traffic engineer, and Raymond Torres, city planning engineer, were among those in the mayor's office for the conference.

"We are just now getting lane signs painted on the streets, so the motorists will know what to do on one-way streets," Ellis said before the meeting. "The traffic department is moving right along fast, and we have done a lot in the last six months. The city isn't so bad off in traffic deaths in relation to other cities. Do you know, we are just about eleventh in the nation right now?"

HOW IT'S DONE—Sergeant May, of the 501st Parachute Battalion, explains with gestures to Dorothy Comingore and Edmond O'Brien how a parachute trooper floats through the air with the greatest of ease—and a couple of good guns. The picture was taken last night in the lobby of the Fox Theater as a crowd looked on.

'Chute Jumper Is New Idol of Small Boys

There was a minute. Then he'd lower it and put the stopper back in a small bottle concealed inside. Once when Major Trammell Scott was speaking from the stage there was a glassy "clonk" from the middle of the house. Somebody had dropped his bottle, and everybody laughed.

But nobody got boisterous. They just had a good time.

They came swinging down Peachtree on parade and the grown folks lined the curbs by thousands and clapped and cheered as they passed. But the small fry skipped along the sidewalks with them all the way till they pulled up at the Biltmore and fell out.

Then the youngsters moved in. They surged in with newspapers, with old envelopes, with notebooks and any other scrap of paper they could find.

They wanted the boys' autographs.

They didn't care whether it was an officer or an enlisted man. They just wanted the name of a parachute jumper, so they could take it home and show it around to other kids in the neighborhood.

One little fellow had a technique that couldn't miss. He would walk up to a soldier. He would salute in a military manner and thrust his notebook at the startled soldier.

It made the boys feel good. It made them feel sort of like heroes. There was just one thing wrong with it, a fault that was aptly expressed by one tall fellow with the stripes of a sergeant on his sleeve.

"If these were cute little girls about 18 years old instead of these little boys, we'd have some fun," he said, dolefully as he signed for another moppet.

They looked good marching. They swung out like veterans and they covered the long route from the Terminal to the Biltmore in less than 30 minutes. It was a good pace and it could have been faster. But the 29th Infantry band was going on ahead and the men with the big tubas coiled around them had to set the pace.

Don Prince, RKO man who made the arrangements for their visit here, had three empty cars rolling in the rear of the parade. He explained that it was a long hot tramp to the Biltmore. He was afraid some of the boys might fall out. The cars were for the ones who couldn't stand the march. When the boys heard about this they laughed. They had a right to laugh a little. They are trained to march 30 miles in a day, carrying a heavy pack. They could have gone from the Terminal to the Biltmore at a trot. But they appreciated Don's thoughtfulness.

There was a need for cars. The battalion brought 20 men along who couldn't march. They rode. They are the ones who had hit too hard on a recent jump.

"We are sort of stove up in the legs," a limping corporal said at the train. "But we'll jump again in a week."

The boys had quite a time at the Biltmore and what they did to the fried chicken was a caution. They liked the fried chicken almost as well as they liked Miss Dorothy Comingore, the RKO actress who came to town for the premiere. They liked Edmond O'Brien, too. O'Brien is the hero of the picture.

When they found out he played the part of a soldier who was afraid to jump they gave him a friendly cheer. They know how that is. They've been afraid, too. But they jumped anyway.

They had a swell time at the movie. They cheered everything from the man at the organ to Donald Duck to their own selves when the feature started and they flashed on the screen, marching out with their chutes strapped on to make a jump.

They thought the picture was swell. Not only because they were in it. Because in the movie a young trooper got into a game of dominoes with a tough old top sergeant—and won all the sergeant's pay.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 14.—(AP)—UAW-CIO delegates in a standing vote adopted tonight a super-minority report excluding Communist, Nazi and Fascist members or sympathizers from holding any elective or appointive position in the union.

A roll-call vote was ordered, however, after President R. J. Thomas, of the union, declared the report of the constitution committee was approved. Delegates shouted that Thomas was "railroading" the recommendation through the convention and demanded a roll-call poll.

I. C. C. Urges U. S. Regulate Trucks

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—(AP)—Federal regulation of sizes and weights of motor carriers to prevent "unreasonable obstruction" to the flow of trade between the states was recommended to Congress today by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

"While states of given regions have shown a tendency to bring their regulations into closer accord and while this tendency has been marked in the recent past," the ICC said, "the process is a slow one and there is no assurance that it will be carried to the extent the public requires. Burdens of interstate commerce cannot be relieved through the judicial processes; only legislation can afford the needed relief."

Here Is Drama!

When the history of our times comes to be written it is doubtful if a more dramatic, important or fateful incident will be found than the meeting, at sea, of the leaders of the American and of the British peoples.

President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and high officials of their two governments with high ranking officers of the naval, military and air services of both nations, met at an unannounced point in the North Atlantic and there discussed joint war plans for the defeat of the Axis powers and drew up a program of eight points for the creation of a better postwar world.

It is probable this meeting, in world significance, will rank with the signing of Magna Carta at Runnymede and the adoption of the Constitution of the United States. For, in its declaration of purpose, it outlines a program for the freedom of the people of the entire world comparable with those historic steps toward the freedom of peoples of individual nations.

Also it marks the first time in history that the leaders of the two great English-speaking nations have collaborated in a plan for the rebuilding of a distraught world.

The official statement issued yesterday at the White House declares that the problem of supply of munitions of war, both for the nations actively fighting aggression and for the vast defense program of the United States, was discussed. From such discussion must evolve a better co-ordination and a more effective co-operation than has been effected in the past, despite best efforts of all nations involved. The fact that Lord Beaverbrook, the dynamic Canadian who is British minister of supply, was present at the conferences and is coming to Washington to discuss further details, adds to the confidence the public of both nations will feel in the program to be developed.

However, greatest significance of all centers in the eight "common principles" in the national policies of both nations which were enunciated after the meeting. On these eight points, it is stated, both countries "base their hopes for a better future for the world."

There is no desire for national aggrandizement for either Britain or the United States in this program. There is no hint of "imperialism" or commercial greed. Instead they set forth nothing but the simple hope of a world in which all nations, all men, shall be free to pursue their dreams without fear of outside aggression; shall have full access to the natural wealth of the world; and shall be enabled to live full lives without fear and want.

As the news of this joint program permeates the world—as it must, even in the countries under Nazi rule—it will awaken new hope in the hearts of all mankind.

It dooms, irrevocably, the German dream of domination by conquest and makes certain the ultimate liberation of the enslaved peoples from Nazi tyranny.

Beside such a program the mouthings of small-souled isolationists and political opportunists shrink to nothing. It sounds as a clarion call to sacrifice, to full effort, to duty, for all men and women with the spark of freedom in their souls.

It will be recorded, in the future histories of man, as the new Magna Carta of human freedom.

Mark the date and remember it. It is the most significant historic happening of our time.

As a writer of communiques, the Fuehrer gets better all the while. In proclaiming this latest triumph, he works in everything but the Hollywood "colossal."

Along with geography, the Fuehrer institutes a few changes in meteorology. In this Russian blitz, he introduces a lightning that creeps.

The Russians rename their villages to baffle the invader. Another cute trick—American style—is to leave the town half-wait out on the highway to misdirect the traveler.

Challenge to Georgians

The "Little Flower" wants action. That dynamic gentleman, Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia, of New York, who also serves as the nation's director of civilian defense, has written a letter to officials of the Fourth Civilian Defense Area here, urging Georgia to complete its air lookout posts.

LaGuardia pointed out in his letter that the aircraft warning service, in which approximately 20,000 volunteers will be stationed at posts, one in every eight square miles of Georgia, must be ready to function before the air force combat command conducts practice maneuvers in the early fall.

Further, stated the mayor's letter, the time schedule established by the air force combat command cannot be met unless there is a decided step-up in the rate of progress now being made in the establishing and manning of observation posts. Shortly after receipt of LaGuardia's letter, local civilian defense officials said that a list of volunteers for this type of duty must be turned over to the Army in two weeks.

Yet it does seem a bit as though LaGuardia were rather unduly alarmed. Georgians have never shirked a patriotic duty. Nor have they shrunk from work and responsibility in the cause of national defense. The mayor of New York need not worry. He wants action. It's a safe bet he'll get it, that the men and women of this state, as always, will come through—and on time.

The unspeakable Russian confuses the invaders by changing the names of his towns. How humiliating, to capture Moscow, only to have it turn out to be East Burlap.

Linder on Parity

Commissioner of Agriculture Tom Linder has gone to bat for the farmers of Georgia and the nation by asking that parity prices for basic farm commodities be at least 33 1-3 above the 1913 average.

Linder has made a detailed study of farm income and national income and has reached the conclusion that congress has set up a controlled economy.

From 1935 to 1939, he points out, the farmers received only two-thirds as much of the national income as they received during the five years from 1925 to 1929.

The commissioner makes a convincing argument when he says "Any legislation which says to the American farmer, 'You must produce food and clothing for the balance of the people at a price which does not give you equality with people in other lines,' is nothing short of legislating the farmers into peonage."

For weeks now Linder has been waging a consistent battle against price-fixing legislation. To some his may be a voice crying in the wilderness, but to the farmers he is speaking a language they understand.

There is no getting around his argument that the farmers should not be discriminated against in this hour of national emergency, that they should not be burdened with the greatest hardships while others are being paid a bonus.

In the good old days a United States Marine with fifteen to twenty key words in Spanish could get along nicely wherever duty called.

Nuts From Georgia

Georgia this year will lead all the other states of the nation in pecan production, according to the Federal Crop Reporting Board, which estimates, for the benefit of buyers and consumers, what is being grown on the farms of the United States.

Says the board: Georgia will top the other states with 9,472,000 pounds of pecans, as compared with 8,526,000 pounds produced in 1940. In all, the pecan crop of the country will add up to more than 87,000,000 pounds.

The pecan growers of Georgia should shout this fact to the nation; let everyone know which state leads in production of those tasty bits of "meat" so vital in candies, cakes, salads, fancy concoctions and just "plain eating." A good thing is worth advertising.

Irregular fellows, these Nazis. They go into a town and loot the treasury without the formality of organizing a local political machine.

Georgia Editors Say:

THIS IS NO TIME FOR STRIKES
(From The Moultrie Observer.)

There has been another wave of labor troubles in war industries recently. Public patience is being put to the test again. There is already strong feeling among the draftees in the Army against those who delay production of armaments through bickering and strikes. These newest strikes will only serve to stir this feeling and embitter the boys at the Army camps.

If the war clouds are thickening, and our national safety is endangered, then this important information should be gotten over to labor and capital, both sides up to their necks in prosperity.

It is time for us to make up our minds. It is time for all classes to put on the whole armor and march together. There is something for all men to do, and something for all classes to do. The government should take a firm stand before we are further divided and weakened. It is time to put both labor and capital under control. If we have the right, even when there is no actual war, to conscript men to leave their homes and give their lives to the government, then we surely have the right to conscript both labor and capital. If one is fair, then the other is fair. It is not fair to send the flower of our young manhood into the training camps and allow the favored industrialists and the favored union labor men to roll in luxury and fight with each other over the spoils of defense preparedness.

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

PLIGHT OF VICHY WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—Although the latest pro-Nazi developments in Vichy, France, the calmer view of high government officials is that too much criticism of the French nation is not justified under the existing circumstances. The plight of the French government is best likened to that of a disarmed person with a gun at his back telling him what to do.

Our own officials are inclined to consider more in this light the new French program of collaboration with Germany, as revealed this week by Marshal Petain, head of the Vichy government, in the elevation of Admiral Darlan, pro-Axis vice premier, to supreme command of France's armed forces.

If Hitler directed such a course of action, there was little else the French government could do. He represents the armed gunman standing behind Marshal Petain and his Vichy associates since the fall of France some 13 months ago. Of necessity France must consent to whatever degree of collaboration Germany insists upon, short of taking up actual arms against her former allies.

HITLER HAS POWER

The surprise of it is that more positive measures of collaboration have not been attained before. It certainly has been within Hitler's power to set up a puppet government in France any time he wanted to during the past 13 months of German occupation. The fact that remaining units of the French navy have not been turned over to the Germans, and that a considerable force of the French army is still in Africa under command of General Weygand, speaks something for the diplomatic resistance put up by the Vichy government under the most trying circumstances.

Rather than judge the new developments entirely on their face value, State Department heads are taking a more realistic view of the situation: What else could France do so long as she is bound down by German occupation? A deeper meaning lies hidden between the cryptic lines addressed to the United States by Marshal Petain in his speech to the French nation. It seemed that he used the occasion to get something openly to the American people which the German censors had prevented from coming out of France since the occupation. Here is what he said:

THE WORDS OF PETAIN

"I would like to recall to the great American republic the reasons why it has no reason to fear a decline of French ideals. Certainly our parliamentary policy is dead. But it never had more than a little in common with the democracy of the United States. As for the instinct of liberty—that lives always with us, proud and strong. 'The American press has often misjudged us. Let it now make an effort to understand the quality of our souls; the destiny of a nation whose soil—during the course of history—periodically ravaged, is youth decimated; its well-being troubled by the weakness of Europe, in whose reconstruction France today intends to participate.'"

What more could the 85-year-old French chief of state have said to reveal that his tongue was in his cheek as regards his other utterances on German collaboration?

There is a disposition in informed government quarters to regard the latest German diplomatic moves in France and Japan as intended by Hitler to offset the slow military progress made in his campaign against Russia and the closer co-operation between the United States, Great Britain and Russia. Developments in Tokyo and Vichy are hardly to be construed as separate and accidental crises.

TIMED AS DIVERSION

Rather there are reasons to believe that they were timed by Hitler to divert us from some of the things we are doing, no less than to take the edge off his own failure to accomplish a six weeks' blitz of Russia, as the German people had been promised at the beginning of the Soviet invasion.

But there are obviously other reasons behind Hitler's hastening of the Nazification of France. He needs both the French navy and the French-controlled bases off the coast of Africa for his attack on British shipping. Unless the fortunes of war improve for him considerably before the winter season sets in, he may ultimately need French soldiers to aid him in the subjugation of Russia. There is more likelihood of French armed collaboration going in this direction because of long-standing animosity between the French and the Russians.

Likewise he is trying to push Japan into a war with the United States, Great Britain and Russia, realizing that a war in the Pacific would force us to divert much of our effort from Europe.

How far he will be able to go in either direction our officials are unable to say for the moment. It is safe to say, however, that most of his moves have been anticipated in advance and the answers have already been prepared. They will be given when more definite steps are taken for putting the Hitler moves into play.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

In Atlanta, As Well.

Last Wednesday I read in the news columns of the death at Los Angeles of Dr. Charles F. Aked. The story stated that the British-born minister came to this country in 1907 and had his pastorate in New York, Kansas City, San Francisco and Los Angeles. In Los Angeles he founded the All Souls church.

Probably the obituary information failed to include the fact that Dr. Aked at one time held a pastorate in Atlanta. He died, about 1912. But I don't think he ever attracted much attention here and so, in all likelihood, his brief service to the Congregational church which used to stand somewhere in the vicinity of the Carnegie library—I've forgotten the exact location—has been overlooked.

But there are personal reasons why I remember his residence in Atlanta quite well. Though I never attended his church and, insofar as I can recall, never spoke to him.

The Arm of Coincidence.

When I was a boy, living in Liverpool, my family attended a small Methodist church, almost directly across the street from home. We were very regular attendants at all services—because of my father's insistence—and our loyalty thus prevented us from visiting at other churches.

However, about two or three blocks away, there was a big church called Pentecost Chapel. It must have had a seating capacity for several thousand. And, every Sunday night, it was filled to overflowing with many people turned away because of lack of space.

The preacher was rather a sensationalist. That was how he attracted such vast congregations. People came to hear him from all over the city. He was, definitely, a "popular preacher."

That preacher was Dr. Charles F. Aked. In 1904 I left Liverpool and crossed the Atlantic to Canada. After varied experiences and, on the whole, a pretty good life in that country, I came into the United States to live in 1910. Two years later, in 1912, I came to Atlanta and have been an Atlantan ever since.

When I came to Atlanta, in 1912, Dr. Charles F. Aked was pastor of that small Congregational church in the vicinity of Carnegie way. I noticed it especially, because of the coincidence. I had scarcely thought of his name since leaving Liverpool, eight years before, but recognized at once the man who had been probably the greatest pulpit crowd drawer of my youthful home.

It surprised me somewhat, to find that he was little known in Atlanta, that his congregations were small and that he filled only a minor role in the city's church life. Apparently, however, he found himself again in Los Angeles. He established there a new church of which he was the pastor throughout his active life.

Perhaps the church atmosphere of Atlanta was not suited to his type of sensationalist preaching. Perhaps Los Angeles was more in rapport with his methods.

Anyway, it seemed to me rather strange coincidence that I should run into the same man, under such different circumstances, in Atlanta, as had been so well known in my own city.

Novelist

And Preacher.

I recall another preacher, at home and abroad, who attracted audiences at every service. His name was Hocking, though I've forgotten his first name.

I think his popularity stemmed from the fact that he was, also, a popular novelist of the day. He wrote rather simple love stories, always about poor girls, factory hands or daughters of miners or such like. The poor, but honest girl was always the heroine and the villain was always wealthy. It was a definite recipe. For there are so many poor girls and every one loved his stories. They sold in cheap, paper-backed editions, 'way up in the hundreds of thousands. And he must have made tidy sums in royalties from all of them. I think he turned out two or three a year.

Anyway, the fame of his novels drew tremendous crowds to his church. And, I suppose, both books and sermons did good. For he never failed, in either, to emphasize one of another of the good, old, simple virtues. I think the generic subtitle for his books should have been that line about rags being royal robes when worn for virtue's sake.

Word Stories

By W. Worthington Wells

In a recent dispatch Arthur Krook was discussing the assistance the national government rendered to sections of the country visited by dust storms, hurricanes or tornadoes. He said that some people had complained that the government was parsimonious in its aid to them, while on the other hand it was PROFLIGATE in the distribution of aid to others.

PROFLIGATE is an adjective pronounced PROF-lig-ate, with the accent on the first syllable. Profligate, in the above sentence, means that the government was wasteful, extravagant, and dissipated its funds.

Profligate is most frequently used when referring to a person who is said to be without morals or decency, insensible to principle and abandoned to vice and a life of shame and corruption, as: The man pursues a profligate course of life. The court is composed of a group of profligate officials. Almost every day we are reminded of a great and honorable nation which is now in the hands of a group of profligate degenerates.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

The opinions expressed by Mr. Pegler in this column, are his own and do not necessarily represent the opinion of The Atlanta Constitution.

Who Is

Saboteur?

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—I assume that nobody will argue against the notorious fact that there has been vast sabotage of the war effort through union strikes in shipyards, airplane plants, steel mills and the like, while young men by the thousands have been vanishing from home into the Army and Navy and most of the civilians have been fumbling for something helpful to do beyond paying heavy taxes and doing without.

Who is responsible for this? Who is the boss saboteur?

It would be idle to go howling after any individual Communist or common racketeer of the familiar AFL type, or any group of them. For a moment's thought will remind any intelligent person that they could be stopped in an hour if the government of this country really desired to stop them. The melancholy thought will reveal the national government has not only refused to stop them, except in one conspicuous case in California, but also has blocked every effort to enact new laws, or amendments to existing ones, whereby the Department of Justice would have unmistakable authority, indeed an urgent public duty, to stop these strikes.

Sold Into

Bondage

The national government of the United States has sold the common man into bondage in the unions, driven hundreds of thousands of citizens into silent, frightened captive ranks under the rule of extortioners, terrorists, killers and traitors, and has had the effrontery to speak of this wicked betrayal of free people as "labor's gain."

The same men who were capable of such mighty indignation over the robbery of a few little people, have lost their sagacity to the great swindlers of the Republican boom, have had not one word to say in pity for these new victims of the new tyranny and robbery whose stories have been related in pathetic detail in print and before a subcommittee of congress almost daily for more than two years. There are anti-kick-back laws on the books, but those men who have proclaimed in the corny tremolo of the glib demagogue their righteous hatreds of all oppression, have made no move to compel the refund of a single dollar wrung from the hands of dirt-poor American workers by licensed brigands who stationed themselves astride the roads and gates leading to defense projects and brutally robbed their victims under the very eyes of American soldiers.

Not one dollar has the American government recovered for these little people, nor has the Department of Justice found any law by which to punish even one such brigand for extortion.

Cunning

Method

There is a cunning method in all this sabotage and oppression. Charge the government with connivance and the reply is a cry for "unity" and "co-operation," plus a plea that congress in its wisdom has not seen fit to enact laws to cover the offenses. But, let some congressmen or committee of congress bring out such a proposal, and the national government, judging by past performances, will go into action under cover, by phone, by word of mouth, by intimation that there must be no legislation to repeal so much as a comma of "labor's gains." And having defeated the remedial proposals, the government can then say that, although wise men on the hill had recognized the lack of laws, congress had refused to act.

But let it be observed and marked boldly for reference and guidance that not one person in that circle known as "the administration," where "labor's gains" are spoken of so lovingly, has demanded, or even admitted the necessity for, any corrective legislation. The same group who were capable of such moist and angry pity for the little stockholders and pictured them as widows and orphans for dramatic appeal, have had no pity for thousands of small Americans who have had to pay from $25 to $300 for the right to work on defense jobs or in other employment.

The same group that exhorts the people to use less gasoline and buy bonds for defense, and sends the sons of American families into camps to soldier with broomsticks and stove pipes, will permit no legislation which would break the power of unionists who organize mobs at the factory gates to prevent loyal workers from turning out shooting guns and ships, propellers, planes and tanks.

For Whose

Benefit?

What are the young men training to defend in these camps as they go through childish motions, with mock weapons, like little boys playing Indian? For whose benefit are all the other sacrifices extorted? All are sacrificing for the benefit of a few professional conspirators whose privilege has been placed above the national safety, above the lives and human rights of the whole American people. And so it will go for an indefinite time, because you may be absolutely sure that the national government will seek to prevent the adoption of any laws by congress to impair the sacred right of sabotage so mockingly described as "labor's gains."

Though the nation fall, the right of sabotage must be preserved.

LONG WAY TO R. A. F.

After traveling 7,000 miles from the United States to join the R. A. F., Edward Gunn, a young American, arrived in London on his 21st birthday. He left a job in California and sailed for Britain as a deck boy on a Norwegian steamer.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

"EIGHT HOPES" I would like to have seen that rendezvous—the English ship, the American battleships and destroyers; the planes.

I would like to have seen that meeting between Franklin D. Roosevelt and Winston Churchill as they met somewhere on the Atlantic to discuss plans for war and peace.

Reading the eight points upon which they agreed, one can wish that these two men might have written, in the understanding of today, the peace of 1918. If they had written the peace signed in the mirrored halls of the palace of Versailles, there would not have been any Hitler or Mussolini. There would not have been any Munich and all that came after it.

In fact, had just one of the points been written into the peace of Versailles it might have saved the day. It is the fourth one:

"They will endeavor, with due respect for their existing obligations, to further the enjoyment by all states, great or small, victor or vanquished, of access, on equal terms, to the raw materials of the world which are needed for their economic prosperity."

England must bear most of the blame for the failure of the German republic, as England must bear most of the blame for the building up of Hitler's strength. But one knows now that when Winston Churchill came to power in England, the men who had made England's policy since the World War of 1914 were done. They were last represented by the futile, selfish Neville Chamberlain.

Not until now has England had a leader who could say as did Churchill, that England wanted no territorial changes, and no aggrandizement.

NO MENTION OF JAPAN

The note does not mention Japan. Yet it speaks to Japan. It gives assurance to Japan of an economic peace. It is shrewdly calculated to inspire the real economists of Japan who now are subjugated by the army and navy clique which forms the Japanese cabinet.

Japan must know that plans were made at this meeting for any possible Japanese aggression. Japan hardly wants war. It is difficult to believe that even her war leaders are willing to plunge into war if the United States actively is to be involved. Undoubtedly, Japan has moved ahead on the belief that the United States would not actually engage in a shooting war.

The United States will. A declaration of war against Japan would meet with popular approval. The psychology which has opposed entry into active war on the side of England would join with war on Japan.

Japan may be so committed she will risk it all. I recall one paragraph in John Gunther's book, "Inside Asia," which quoted one of Japan's war leaders as saying that rather than "lose face" in the Chinese war, the leaders in Japan would plunge the nation into what they would believe to be a "suicidal war" to be extinguished "gloriously," rather than change their course and withdraw as an active participant in the war.

The war leaders, the most powerful ruling group in Japan, would be eliminated were they replaced by the economic group which is more interested in economic progress than in military progress.

This one fact is the chief reason why Japan does not now change her course and leave the Axis.

THE FULL STORY

When the full story is known it is likely to develop that Russia was represented. Joint plans for a Siberian engagement against Japan must have been made.

A wise Japan could now make the most advantageous sort of peace. A wise Japan could satisfy China and still retain some advantages there.

If war comes Japan must assuredly will be defeated and that soon. It will be a naval engagement. The United States Navy can, in conjunction with the British, fight a Pacific coast battle. The Atlantic can be neglected long enough to win the battle of the Pacific.

If Russia has concurred, the air bases of Siberia will enable the United States to assist. It is but a step from Alaska to Russia. One may see Russia from the shores of the United States of America and its Alaskan territory. Planes can fly there and thence to the strategic bases.

The Germans must go on. They cannot stop. There likely are some very real wishes on the Wilhelmstrasse that it were possible to withdraw and make a peace not nearly so exacting as those proposed before. They can't stop.

Even so, there will be a growing doubt in the minds of the German rulers. If Russia can save off collapse; if Russia can stop the Germans and keep them fighting into winter, the tide of war will turn with the ideas of March.

It was a historic meeting. It may be as significant in another direction as was the shameful meeting at Munich, where Neville Chamberlain, representing those who ruled Britain, signed away, for the time being, the self-respect, the integrity and the safety of his nation.

Wheeler Is Doing to Roosevelt
What Lodge Did to Wilson

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

There are millions of Americans who disapprove the policies and acts of Mr. Roosevelt. There are many who dislike him because of things he has said and done. And, if this is still a free country, every citizen has the native right to criticize the President when he does things that seem unwise or wrong.

But to every rational and patriotic citizen, who understands the nation's peril, the President is the Commander-in-Chief—the Constitutional leader chosen by the people, whose efforts to defend the nation must be supported.

Criticism of his methods can be both decent and useful, for many heads are better than one and free people may have a voice in shaping their destiny. That much we may all concede.

But while the nation's life is in peril, no man can have the right to forget the obligations of citizenship, and disregard the welfare of our country, and deliberately encourage discord and strife in order to gratify his personal and pathological hatred of the President.

Nor can he justify his conduct with the hysterical plea that he is merely exercising his right of free speech, as other critics are doing; for even the simplest of people can distinguish between

By PRESS HUBBLEDTON. ANOTHER BIG APPLE. Simon Moltack, president of the Big Apple Super Markets Corporation, was busy yesterday greeting many friends and customers in another new market opened at 25 Memorial drive. This is the fifth store of its type to be opened here, and plans are being made, says Mr. Moltack, for opening other units here as well as out-of-town expansion, which will get under way with a new Super Market at Opelika, Ala. This unit will also be opened soon. Big Apple units are self-service, and are known for their wide variety of merchandise, as well as the splendid quality of their products. Each store is departmentized into bakery, grocery, meat, dairy and produce divisions.

The corporation heading the markets is made up of Atlanta men, many of whom have been engaged in the retail grocery business in this city for more than 30 years. McCalls and Good Housekeeping magazines in a recent survey, selected the Big Apple Super Markets as highly representative of merchandising trends, and offered their special food and research divisions for the use of Big Apple.

Nazis Answer With Weapons, Berlin Asserts

Axis Observers Minimize Importance of British-U. S. Statement.

By The Associated Press.

The German foreign office mouthpiece, Deutsche Diplomatische Politische Korrespondenz, last night called the Roosevelt-Churchill program "a plagiarism of President Wilson's points—and a bad one at that."

In the first detailed German reaction to the British-American outline, the Korrespondenz went on:

"It is an impudent lie when Churchill and Roosevelt maintain that their countries seek neither territorial nor any other kind of enrichment."

It said the determination to achieve "final destruction of the Nazi tyranny" was "grotesque."

Dienst aus Deutschland, a commentary close to the foreign office, said:

"One may not assume that Germany is ready seriously to examine this program. On the contrary, there is no doubt the Reich is determined to give the answer exclusively with weapons."

The newspaper Kokumin, which circulates largely in militarist circles, said in Tokyo the Roosevelt-Churchill decision (which did not mention Japan) made the Far Eastern situation more dangerous.

"The new establishment of a new world order, especially the co-prosperity sphere, is the immutable policy of Japan," Kokumin said.

"Whatever plots and maneuvers Britain and the United States may resort to cannot hope to obstruct Japan's enforcement of the policy."

"These two anti-Axis powers should remember that such a reckless attitude will only serve to push the situation into a more dangerous one."

Rome Minimizes Action.

Fascist circles in Rome said that the eight-point declaration would not alter the war course of Germany, Japan or Italy and that Fascists had suspected before announcement that the President and prime minister had agreed on a war plan.

Fascist circles in the Washington-London announcement, the authoritative editor, Virginia Gayda, wrote in Il Giornale d'Italia, "Whatever is said and done, the war of the Axis, like that of Japan, will continue straight ahead on its course."

The official French information office rejected the British-American war aims as old stuff and inadequate, following up a radio declaration by Vice Premier Jean Darlan that he would lead France along the road mapped out by Chief of State Pétain, indicating full collaboration with Germany.

The information office's quickly prepared reaction to the Roosevelt-Churchill statement read:

"It only repeats in briefer form President Wilson's 14 points."

"It does not introduce a single new element into a doctrine which almost 25 years ago appeared as having some value."

"Experience has proved this doctrine insufficient to assure peace and justice."

The French Telemondial Agency said the French people were more interested in the appearance of a step toward a real British-American alliance than in "the principles enunciated by Churchill and Roosevelt."

Spaniards, whose nationalist government won a civil war just a few months before general European warfare broke out, were particularly interested in the third point of the joint Churchill-Roosevelt declaration.

"(It pledges respect for 'the right of all peoples to choose the form of government under which they will live.'")

Since Germany attacked Russia there has been increasing effort by pro-Nazi elements in Spain to link the British-American cause with the former republican regime in Spain.

The question many Spaniards asked was: "Is this the United States' declaration of war or merely official recognition of unity between the aims of the two governments?"

Mexico Applauds.

The eight peace aims enunciated by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill represent the "will of America," Foreign Minister Ezequiel Padilla, of Mexico, said.

"As foreign minister of a country which has always fought for realization of the noble aspirations of peace, of justice and of liberty, I can do no less than applaud their declaration sincerely," Padilla said in an official statement.

In the shadows which temporarily surround us, the generous principles formulated by the United States and English governments are an announcement of the conditions of equity, of concord and of civilized fraternity which all men of conscience aspire to."

"They represent the will of America, united today more than ever against the threat of evil and of extermination of democratic ideals."

Encirclement Plazas Over Rail Tracks Proposed

Of Soviet Ports Said Complete

Reds Deny Claims of Nazis, Who Report Rain in Ukraine.

A step toward construction of walkway and parking plazas from Spring to Courtland street over the railroad tracks which gash through the heart of Atlanta was taken yesterday by the public works committee of city council.

A resolution by Councilmen John A. White and William Knight, to authorize the city attorney to seek permission of the railroad and to draw legislation necessary to obtain state consent for the plaza was adopted by the committee and will be sent to council Monday.

The proposed plazas would furnish parking space for 5,000 cars and would cut smoke in this area from the train engines, White added. He said the project, estimated to cost $4,000, could be done a part at a time if necessary.

Encirclement Denied. Pravda, the organ of the Communist party, asserted that the Russian defense had in fact smashed the German offensive and the Soviet army newspaper asserted that in the long fighting in the west and southwest some 280,000 to 300,000 Germans had been knocked out in the destruction of the Thirty-ninth German tank corps, 11 other divisions and 13 regiments. It was claimed that 21 other German divisions had suffered more than 50 per cent losses.

It acknowledged that "the German army still is powerful," but asserted that the Reichswehr is throwing new reserves into battle in reorganized divisions and that "the myth of the invincibility of German arms is crushed once and forever."

S. A. Lozovsky, the Soviet vice commissar for foreign affairs, denied the Nazi claim that the Red armies of the Ukraine had been encircled.

Some Russian reports pictured the German drives both in the Ukraine and below Leningrad as having been broken down by an effective defense into isolated encirclements.

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION
Edited by SALLY SAVER

ATLANTA, GA., FRIDAY MORNING, AUGUST 15, 1941.

Grapes are now in full season and that means there'll be plenty of good things made from them. They'll be put up as jellies and jams for use during the winter months. Many more will be cooked into delicious pies and desserts to be eaten right now. Whether for munching or for cooking, grapes make delicious, healthful eating.

When dinner calls for a light dessert try the orange Spanish cream shown below. Orange slices and fresh grapes add sparkling color as a garnish. The dessert can be made in advance to save last-minute rush on a hot day.

Grapes Make Good Things

CONCORD grapes are in, suggesting that housekeepers begin making grape jelly, jam, preserves and juice. It's true that August weather doesn't help with such plans, but if you will not attempt too much at a time, say will devote only about two hours in the morning for several days, you'll feel repaid with the beginnings of a very satisfactory pantry shelf of goodies. But before we begin on recipes for things for the pantry shelf, let's see what can be done with grapes for the table immediately. Here are suggestions:

Fresh Grape Juice: Pick ripe Concord grapes from the stems, rinse with hot water and put in a large bowl. Mash with a potato masher to extract the juice, then strain the juice through a piece of cheesecloth wrung out of hot water. This may be prepared the day before and kept in a bottle in the refrigerator for serving at breakfast.

Grape Sherbet: Prepare 1 cup fresh Concord grape juice. Put 3-4 cup sugar and 1 cup water in a saucepan and boil for 5 minutes. Cool, add the grape juice and the juice of 1-2 lemons and 1-2 large oranges. Freeze until mushy, then scrape the mixture into a bowl and mix thoroughly with the stiffly beaten whites of 2 eggs. Return to the refrigerator tray and finish freezing, stirring twice.

Flounder With Grapes: Mash 2 cups ripe white grapes and squeeze out the juice. Put 6 small fillets of flounder in a shallow buttered baking dish, dot with butter, sprinkle with salt, pepper and 2 teaspoons lemon juice and pour over them the grape juice mixed with 1-4 cup hot water. Bake in a moderate oven for 25 minutes. Meanwhile, wash and cut in half seedless white grapes to make 1-2 cups. After the fish has cooked for 15 minutes, sprinkle the seedless grapes over it and continue cooking, basting twice with the liquid in the pan. Lift the fish carefully to a hot platter and thicken the juice with 1 tablespoonful flour mixed with a little cold water. Let boil up once, sugar and boil rapidly to the jelly stage, which should be about 15 to 20 minutes. Pour into sterilized jelly glasses.

Grape Preserves
Cut grapes in halves and remove seeds. Measure, add an equal amount of sugar and cook gently, stirring frequently, until mixture is of jelly-like consistency. Pour into sterilized jars and seal.

Spiced Grape Jam: Separate 2 pounds Concord grapes from their stems, rinse with cold water, drain and put in a saucepan. Mash the grapes thoroughly, add 1 cup water and boil for about 5 minutes or until the seeds loosen. Rub the mixture through a coarse strainer, add 3 cups sugar mixed with 2 teaspoons cinnamon and 1 teaspoon ground allspice. Stir frequently and boil for about 25 minutes or until thickened. Pour into sterilized jelly jars and seal with paraffin. Makes about 4 glasses of jam.

Grape Butter
Wash and stem grapes and cook in a very little water until fruit is very soft. Press cooked pulp through a sieve to remove seeds and skins. Measure pulp, add half as much sugar as you have pulp and cook until thick and clear. Spices may be added, if desired. Pour into sterilized jars or glasses and seal.

Grape Catsup
2 quarts ripe grapes.
1 cup sugar.
1 tablespoon cinnamon.
1 tablespoon cloves.
1 tablespoon allspice.
1/2 teaspoon cayenne.
Mild vinegar to cover.
Cook fruit in vinegar until soft. Rub through a sieve, add sugar and spices and cook until thick like tomato catsup. Pour into sterilized jars or bottles and seal.

Grape Juice
Wash sound ripe grapes. Cover them with water and heat slowly to simmering point, but do not boil. Cook very slowly until fruit is quite soft, then strain through a bag. Add half cup sugar to each quart of juice and pour into sterilized jars or bottles. Place tops on firmly and process jar or bottles in hot water for 30 minutes at simmering temperature.

Grape Jelly
Wash and stem 4 pounds of grapes. Crush them, add a small amount of water and boil 15 minutes. Press through a jelly bag to strain. Measure juice and for each cup add 3/4 cup of sugar. Heat juice to boiling point, add

At this season of the year, when fruits are so plentiful, salads should offer no problem. Canned grapefruit segments and seedless grapes fill the salad bowl below.

Ideas From a Cook's Notebook

String Bean Cooking.
String beans need not become monotonous. They could be served every day, in a different way. When you bring them in from garden or store, place them in the refrigerator if they are not to be cooked at once. Stored at room temperature, all vegetables lose vitamins rapidly. Do not wash or cut until ready for use. Then wash quickly in cold water before cutting.

Cut tip with a sharp knife and drop at once into rapidly boiling, unsalted water. Cover and cook in small amount of water until tender, 10 to 15 minutes, depending on age. Cooking time for mature beans can be reduced by cutting them in long strips.

Beans may be cooked with a meat flavoring of some sort, such as meat stock, beef extract, chopped bacon or a ham bone. However, beans are less digestible when cooked with meat. Extra flavor may be given by adding a bouillon cube to the cooking water.

Salt just before serving and add one tablespoon butter, minced parsley or a few sprigs of mint. Or lift beans from cooking juices, add two or three tablespoons light cream to the pot liquor, reheat and pour over each serving of beans as a sauce. Pot liquor from beans is full of minerals and vitamins. When not served with the vegetable, it should be placed in a covered glass jar in the refrigerator. Combine with tomato or lemon juice as a vegetable cocktail, or use in gravy, soup, stew or in sauces.

To add flavor without cooking with meat, crumble crisp bacon in bits and sprinkle over drained beans at serving time.

Cook one slice onion with the beans. Or rub the saucepan with garlic, if the family is garlic-minded.

Jellied chicken broth is a delicacy designed especially for convalescents and for small folks who must be coaxed to eat. It combines nourishment with appetite-appeal. See that the individual servings are small and temptingly garnished.

Jellied Chicken Broth.
2 tablespoons plain gelatine
1-2 cup cold water
3 cups chicken broth
1-4 teaspoon salt
1-4 teaspoon celery salt
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon onion juice, if desired

Soften gelatine in cold water. Add hot broth and stir until gelatine is dissolved. Add seasonings. Pour into bouillon cups that have been rinsed in cold water and chill. This jellied broth, which serves 6, also is delicious hot.

Put a can or two of ripe olives into the refrigerator overnight, or for a few hours before your next picnic preparations. Wrap the thoroughly chilled cans in layers of newspaper to retain the chill for the final opening at the picnic table. And don't forget the necessary can opener.

Ripe olives blend especially well with the flavor of onions and garlic. Remember this for use in brown meat sauces—or for merely adding to the accumulated meat juices in the pan—for service over any steak from filet mignon to hamburger patty.

Avocado-Melon Tantalizer.
1 cup granulated sugar
1 cup water
1-2 cup lemon juice
11-2 cups cubed chilled avocado
Salt
11-2 cups cubed chilled cantaloupe

Combine sugar and water in a saucepan. Bring to a boil and continue boiling 3 or 4 minutes; cool. Add lemon juice and stir to blend. Pour into refrigerator pan, place in freezing unit and freeze without stirring.

To prepare avocado, cut fruit into halves and remove seed and skin. Cut fruit into cubes. Sprinkle lightly with salt. Arrange avocado cubes and cantaloupe in chilled stemmed glasses. Top with frozen mixture and serve immediately.

Sugar-water-lemon juice dressing may be served thoroughly chilled instead of frozen, if desired, but freezing gives a festive air.

Serves six.

Cheese-Vegetable Casserole.
1 1-2 cups scalded milk
1 cup soft bread crumbs
1-4 cup melted butter
2 canned pimientos, chopped
1 1/2 tablespoons onion, chopped
1 1-2 cups grated American cheese
3-8 teaspoon salt
1-8 teaspoon pepper
Few grains paprika
3 eggs

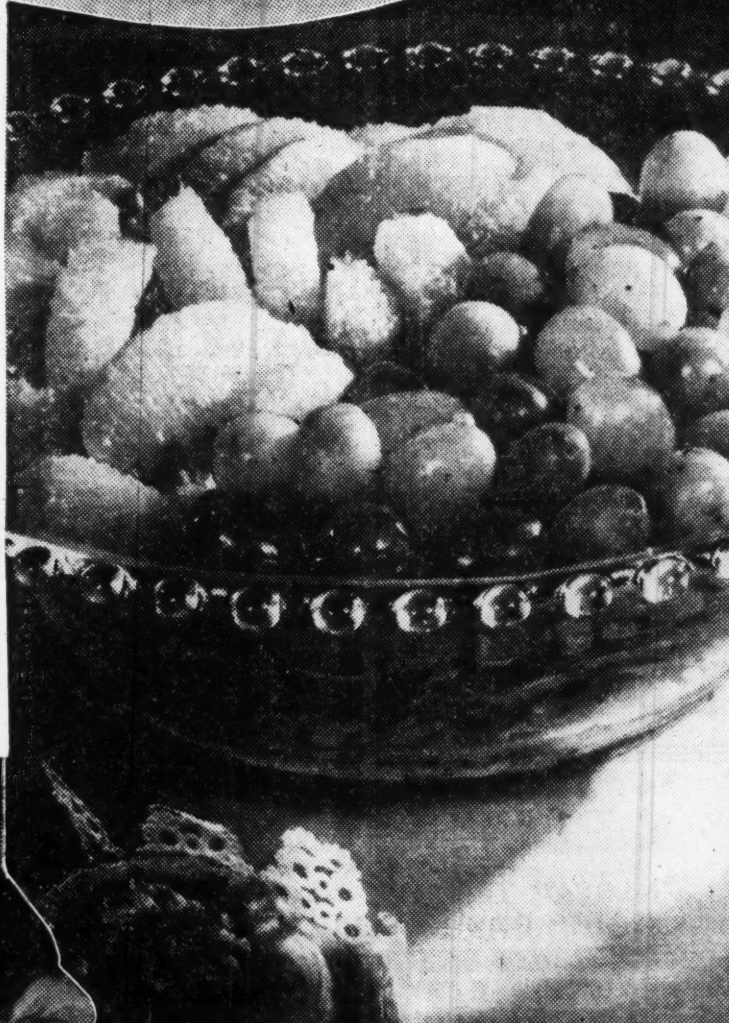

One cup cooked or canned vegetables, well drained. Pour the scalded milk over the bread crumbs. Add butter, pimientos, parsley, onion, grated cheese and seasonings. Then add the well-beaten eggs. Choose any combination of vegetables, such as beans, peas, celery, tomatoes. Place vegetables in a well-greased 1 1/2-quart casserole. Pour the milk, cheese and egg mixture over them. Place in pan of warm water in oven. Bake about 35 minutes in a slow oven 275 degrees F. or until loaf is firm. Serves six. Variation: Add two cups of any cooked or canned fish, lemon and orange juice, or add two cups diced, cooked chicken to recipe.

Hot biscuits go well with fruit and cheese platters. Big biscuits make this combination lunch or supper. Tiny biscuits make it a sophisticated dessert.

Fruit Garnishes Spanish Cream

2 tablespoons gelatine.
2 cups milk.
1-2 cup sugar.
1-4 teaspoon salt.
3 egg yolks, slightly beaten.
1 teaspoon grated orange peel.
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel.
2 tablespoons lemon juice.
1 cup orange juice.
3 egg whites, stiffly beaten.
Orange slices and grapes.

Soak gelatine and milk together for five minutes. Put in top of double boiler and heat. When gelatine is dissolved, add sugar. Pour this hot mixture slowly over slightly beaten egg yolks. Return to double boiler and cook until thickened somewhat, stirring constantly. Remove from flame and add salt, grated orange and lemon peel, lemon and orange juice, stiffly beaten egg whites. Turn into mold, chill until firm. Unmold on serving plate and garnish with orange slices and grapes. Dessert will separate into a clear layer and a layer of creamy sponge. Serves 6-8.

When kitchens get stuffy and even the dining room atmosphere is too heavy to inspire real enjoyment of a meal, remember that the whole out-of-doors is waiting to be your picnic ground. Make use of the natural beauty with which Atlanta is blessed by taking your family or friends out into the parks or woods.

Even the simplest meal becomes interesting and appetizing when it is served against a background of green grass and cooling green trees. No picnic need be a complicated affair. In the picture above, Georgia Carroll and Marguerite Chapman, of Warner Brothers, enjoy one whose main dishes required no preparation. Apples, oranges, lettuce and tomatoes are a good start.

Serving one hot dish will add an interesting note with very little trouble. Just heat a can of beans at home and pour them

Fresh Fruits Vary Summer Salads

There can be no question of the popularity of fruit salads, but there seems to be a distressing sameness to the varieties we meet even in the summer when fresh fruits are so plentiful and cheap. There are literally hundreds of possible combinations and variations in the fruit salad theme, yet in many families two or three kinds is a general average! Since fruit salads with the addition of whole grain or enriched bread and butter, perhaps a little cheese and a beverage, make an ideal and healthful luncheon for every member in your family, here are combinations suitable to this season which we recommend to you.

1. Peel ripe fresh apricots and remove the pits. Mash 1-2 cup cream or cottage cheese and mix with 1 tablespoon finely chopped almonds and 1 or 2 tablespoons cream or evaporated milk, using enough to moisten. Fill the centers of the apricots with the cheese and stick slices of toasted, blanched almonds in the cheese. Arrange three halves of the apricots on individual beds of lettuce and serve with thin cream mayonnaise.

2. Cut thick slices from halved cantaloupe, removing the skin and all the hard portion. Arrange a slice of cantaloupe on a thin slice of lettuce. Put 4 sections of orange over each slice of cantaloupe and between the orange sections place slices of ripe Bartlett pear. Sprinkle a few large, chilled blueberries over the salad and serve with cream mayonnaise.

3. Place slices of fresh or canned pineapple on cold plates and garnish the edge of the plate with a border of watercress. On the pineapple heap white seedless grapes and balls of honeydew melon and around the edge a few slices of deep yellow ripe peach. Serve with cream cheese dressing—French dressing mixed with cream cheese to make a thick dressing.

4. Halve chilled very ripe red and blue plums and stuff with cream cheese mixed with chopped celery. Arrange 3 halves on shredded lettuce, garnish with slivers of endive and serve with cream mayonnaise.

5. Cut quarter-inch slices crosswise from a firm head of lettuce and spread each slice with cream or cottage cheese mixed to a thick paste with cream. Arrange a pile of slightly sugared raspberries or blackberries in the center of each slice and surround with seedless white grapes.

6. Cut rings from ripe, pink cantaloupe and remove skin and hard inner rind. Fill the rings with a mixture of sliced peaches, cubes of pineapple and sliced grapes and garnish with small leaves of crisp romaine. Serve with French dressing.

7. Peel ripe Bartlett pears, place on crisp lettuce leaves and coat immediately with Roquefort cheese dressing made by adding 1/2 pound Roquefort cheese to 1/2 well-seasoned French dressing and 1 tablespoon cream.

8. Place a half of a small, peeled avocado on a thin slice of pineapple and fill the center of the avocado with chilled canned grapefruit sections. Serve with watercress or small lettuce leaves.

9. Mix seedless white grapes and cubes of fresh pineapple and serve on lettuce with chutney dressing made by stirring 2 tablespoons chutney into 1-3 cup thin mayonnaise or cooked salad dressing.

10. Fill halves of large, peeled melon and around the edge a few cherries, arrange on individual plates with crisp endive and serve with cream cheese dressing.

Ford Displays First Plastic Automobile

10,000 Spectators View Car of Farm-Grown Fibers.

DEARBORN, Mich., Aug. 14.—(UP)—Ford Motor Company officials last night unveiled Henry Ford's first plastic automobile at the 15th annual community festival of this city, which the nation's leading auto builder developed along with his far-flung industrial empire.

Because of the throng of more than 10,000 spectators, Ford himself did not attend the preview, but visited the festival briefly during the afternoon.

The showing came as a surprise at the annual "Dearborn Day" celebration and capped 12 years of research by 29 young scientists whom Ford had commissioned to find out about "using agricultural products in industry."

The sleek car, mounted on a tubular-welded steel frame, has a superstructure composed entirely of a plastic fiber, a material said to be superior to steel in everything but tensile strength.

Its manufacture on a mass-production basis, Ford officials said, would enable widespread use of agricultural products—cotton, wheat, soybeans and corn—and huge savings of steel and other vitally needed defense materials.

The cream-colored model displayed last night was powered with a 60-horsepower Ford V-8 engine and was trimmed with maroon paneling.

It was pointed out that the plastic material will absorb a blow 10 times as great as steel without denting.

Ford was the first to test the durability of the plastic panel by swinging on it with an axe. The appearance of the panel remained unchanged after the blow, but a similar experiment on a steel panel cut through the metal.

Discussing the effect of the possible wide-spread adoption of plastic bodies, a food scientist said, "If we made a million automobiles a year with plastic bodies, we would consume at least 170,000 tons of agriculture products and 50,000 tons of synthetic chemicals."

Needed materials, he said, would include 101,000 bales of cotton, 500,000 bushels of wheat, 700,000 bushels of soy beans, and 500,000 bushels of corn.

Ford said he was confident that plastic bodies can be produced by practical and economical means.

He said the plastic body weighs approximately 2,000 pounds while a steel unit of comparable size weighs approximately 3,000 pounds.

2 Negroes Held In 1935 Killing Of Dublin Man

Six-Year-Old Case of Slain Merchant Is Reopened.

DUBLIN, Ga., Aug. 14.—Two Negroes were being held today in connection with the killing of E. E. Rutherford, well-known Dublin merchant, August 3, 1935, Solicitor General J. Eugene Cook announced.

Solicitor Cook listed the two as Eddie Lewis and Willie Watkins. Lewis was taken into custody at Columbus, Ga., and Watkins in St. Petersburg, Fla., the solicitor said.

Lewis was held in jail here by Sheriff I. F. Coleman for some time in 1940 in connection with the case, but was released under bond last November when the investigation appeared to have reached a stalemate.

No details of the new development were made public. The two are held in jail elsewhere, the solicitor stated.

Rutherford was shot to death one Saturday night shortly after he had closed his store. Motive for the slaying was obscure.

SCARE CURES COW.
ROCHELLE, Ga., Aug. 14.—C. O. Sutton finds that it does not always require physic to cure an ill. In this instance a good scare effected a cure. Sutton had a sick cow which refused to eat until she was badly frightened by a coil which got loose in the pasture. After the scare the milk came heartily—and let down her milk, too.

Safety Division Upkeep Shows $100,000 Rise

Charged to Enlargement of Personnel and Equipment.

An audit of the Department of Public Safety showed yesterday that payments for maintenance and operations in the fiscal year ended June 30 totaled $793,333.66, compared to $693,951.52 in the previous fiscal year.

State Auditor B. E. Thrasher Jr. said the increase in cost was due to an enlargement of personnel, which compelled the purchase of more automobiles, and to the installation of radio transmitters and receivers and the purchase of seven new barracks.

The audit listed 175 patrolmen on June 30, compared to 163 on the same date a year ago. The number of automobiles increased from 84 to 94.

Thrasher said the department ended the fiscal year "in excellent financial condition" and had a surplus of $25,692.25. He asserted that "in the past few months several purchases of gasoline in small quantities for use in the cars of the executive department have been charged to the Department of Public Safety. The total amount is relatively small and has not been included in the balance sheet, but the executive department should be asked to make reimbursement."

Thrasher said the gasoline referred to was some that had been pumped into the Governor's car. He added that for the sake of proper bookkeeping the charges should be made to the executive department rather than the safety department.

The net income of the department was $614,598. This, Thrasher said, together with $236,751 on hand at the beginning of the fiscal year, made a total available to the department of $851,349. Expenditures included $596,584 for the Highway Patrol, $146,448 for the Drivers' License Bureau and $40,707 for the Bureau of Criminal Investigation.

TVA To Operate Alcoa System

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—(AP)—The Tennessee Valley Authority and the Aluminum Company of America signed a contract today under which TVA will operate ALCOA's five-dam hydroelectric system on the Little Tennessee river.

Also, TVA proposes to build a $50,000,000 hydroelectric dam at the Fontana site in North Carolina. David E. Lilienthal, TVA's vice chairman, said the government agency and ALCOA had "agreed that this river should produce the most possible good" and contribute fully to the national defense effort.

ner will be spread at noon. The public is invited, especially all former Crawford county citizens, and present and former members of Society Hill church. Prices never lower—value never greater. Trade your old car in now. Investigate the offerings in the Want Ad pages of The Constitution.

Is the U. S. Fleet Obsolescent?

By RICHARD L. STOKES.
For North American Newspaper Alliance.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—The reason the Bismarck was risked in the Atlantic was that the German admiralty believed it had at last devised an unsinkable battleship—a veritable super-tank of the sea, with a displacement of 50,000 tons and speed of 35 knots, which would be able to smash through anything the British Navy could oppose to it, as the 80-ton Skoda tanks of the Nazi invaders crushed the armored battalions of France.

Such is the conclusion which may be drawn from evidence pieced together out of stories told by German survivors and competent American eye-witnesses who beheld various phases of the far-flung engagement. Some of them were able to inspect the Bismarck from a range as short as four miles.

For protection, it is said, German naval architects relied not to much on armor as an unprecedented multiplication of watertight compartments with pressure doors. The hull is declared to have been honeycombed with something like 133 of these independent cells.

Hit Was Lucky.
The result, according to present information, is that it took no less than 35 hits with torpedoes to send the Bismarck to the bottom. A standard estimate is that four such hits would be fatal to a battleship of the first World War, and that eight would sink a modern craft of the type of the King George V or the newest American capital ship North Carolina.

Only by the narrowest of margins, the account proceeds, did the Bismarck fail to beat off all attacks and find haven in the harbor of Brest. Another three hours of cruising would have placed the vessel inside the zone of Nazi aviation based on the French coast, but the luck hit of an aerial torpedo which disabled the steering gear halted the battleship and doomed it to destruction.

The Bismarck is said to have been hunted by force consisting of four or five battleships, a dozen cruisers, a horde of destroyers, four airplane carriers and land-based aviation from Newfoundland, Iceland, the British Isles and Gibraltar.

Screened by U. S. Boats.
The Bismarck cleverly availed itself of the presence of American patrol boats, the story is, by maneuvering whenever possible to place them as a screen between itself and British men-of-war, which were thereby compelled to cease firing. The German battleship is said to have refrained also from firing over American surface craft.

One such vessel was called to the scene by an S. O. S. stating that 17 merchant ships had been sunk. The inhumanity of modern war at sea has become such that ships in convoy are forbidden to stop and rescue survivors floating in the water. In the war zone such rescues are now almost entirely in the hands of American patrols. This particular ship, somewhere south of Denmark Strait, separating Greenland and Iceland, suddenly found itself with the Bismark four miles away on one side and British warships another four miles distant on the other. Neither of the combatants fired a shot over the American vessel.

One Came Back.

Observers from the United States destroyers saw the surface of the sea, as witnessed in this epic conflict, and in the audacity displayed by English oys of 17 and 18 manning that suicide craft, the torpedo airplane. The decks of the Bismarck, they say, were thronged with anti-aircraft guns which enveloped it from stem to stern in a ring of flame and steel. Into this inferno they saw eight planes dive low on one occasion and skid along some 20 feet above the surface in the hope of sending their torpedoes home. Seven of these planes were instantly shot to pieces, and only one returned.

American eye-witnesses also acclaim the courage of officers and men on a second suicide craft, the destroyer, it is not gunfire that dispatched the Bismarck, they assert, but torpedoes fired by destroyers that swarmed in on the stricken monster, the batteries of which were still blazing when it plunged beneath the sea. Many of the destroyers were hit, it is declared, but the Bismarck could not sink them all. The survivors finally placed enough torpedoes to send the battleship down.

Losses Believed High.
The British have not published their losses in this long-running battle, but they are believed to have been high, particularly in destroyers and planes. That is in addition to the destruction of the outdated battle cruiser Hood, the powder magazine of which was exploded by a lucky shell fired by the Bismarck from a distance of 13 miles. This is rated by Americans near the scene as "one shot in a million."

Immediately after the Bismarck disappeared, the British forces are said to have scattered to the four winds, without stopping to save more than a handful of hundreds of Nazi sailors and marines swimming in the sea. It has been learned by costly experience that chivalry is no longer possible, since German planes have never hesitated to bomb enemy ships even when they were engaged in the rescue of drowning Nazis.

The fact that the German battleship had aboard an extra force of about 1,200 marines is interpreted to signify that one of its missions was the landing of a shore expedition, probably in Iceland. If so, this information may account for President Roosevelt's action in sending armed forces to that island.

Another safety measure incorporated in the Bismarck is declared to have been the scattering of its motors throughout the hull, so that no single well-placed shell could put its power plant out of action.

If this account, from trained and expert American observers, proves to be true, then the Germans have developed a battleship relegating to obsolescence not only every United States capital ship afloat, but also those in the present six-year, two-ocean program. It includes 35,000-ton craft with a speed of 27 knots, and 45,000-ton vessels with a speed slightly better than 30 knots.

Those well advanced in construction are declared to have only 25 main watertight compartments. According to a report which could not be verified at the Navy Department, the Bureau of Ships is hastily revising its plans so as to increase the number of such cells to 45 in later vessels where changes of design are still possible.

The new American battleships, with nine 16-inch rifles, are more powerfully armed than the Bismarck, said to have had eight, and are probably much more heavily armored. But authorities find little pleasure in reflecting that the Germans still hold in reserve one complete sister ship of the Bismarck, the Von Tirpitz, and may have others of a similar type under construction.

The Secret of the Marshbanks

Emma Finally Tells Cherry That Her Sister Was Cherry's Mother

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

SYNOPSIS. Charlotte (Cherry) Rawlings, an orphan, has been at Saint Dorothy's convent school since she was seven years old. She knows almost nothing about her early history but has gradually realized that, like the other girls at the school, she has no family and she questions whether she has the right to her father's name. Judge Judson Marshbank and Emma Haskell are her co-guardians. When she is twenty, Marshbank tells her that Emma has gotten her a secretarial position in San Francisco with old Mrs. Porteus Porter, who is wealthy and a semi-invalid. She goes first to the Marshbank mansion and dines alone with the judge as Fran, his young wife, and his niece Amy are dining out. Kelly Coates, an artist, drops in and Fran and Amy stop on their way out, and it is evident to Cherry that Fran and Kelly are interested in each other. As Fran and Amy go she hears laughing and reference to her convent clothes and she is bitter. Life with Mrs. Porter is monotonous and she is thrilled when Kelly, horseback riding in the park with Fran, comes to talk with her while she is waiting for Mrs. Porter. Later he sends her a box of candy and she is jealous when she sees him with Fran at a party given by Mrs. Porter. He stops to talk with her and she bursts out that she never thought about her because she is a Saint Dorothy's girl. She is horrified when he leaves and decides she must go to him to explain.

INSTALLMENT XI. The customary miracle of service was going on in the house, was accomplished when Cherry walked through the downstairs rooms at noon after a full, fire-warmed morning in Mrs. Porter's apartment, the ordinary procedure of letters and compliments and telephone calls. The great house had reassumed its aspect of luxurious mausoleum.

Cherry felt stifled. She told Emma she did not want any lunch; she took a long walk instead, for Mrs. Porter, all cheerful restoration and amazing vitality at breakfast, had admitted in mid-morning that she felt sleepy—and not tired, but sleepy. So the machinery of the day had been stopped. Cherry was free until late in the afternoon.

She walked toward the Presidio and down its narrow eucalyptus-shaded paths to the cliffs, and so along by the bay shore. Right across the bay, under the arch of the long red bridge, was Sausalito, and somewhere there was Kelly's studio, "Topote."

Cherry sat down on a wall and stared wistfully at the hills as if her thoughts could cross the miles, and somehow find him and somehow let him know how eager she was to make her excuses. "Topote" could easily be reached on a long afternoon's walk; it would be but a short half-dozen miles in all. Her fancy began to play.

Some day—her next all-free day—she would start early and walk straight across the bridge, and when she reached the great ramps on the Marin county side she would ask someone where Spanish Farm road was, and follow it to some gate or fence that said "Topote." Her heart beat fast and hard at the thought. They would talk, he and she, of them, and afterward they would be friends. Cherry the most sensible, the least exacting, the proudest and most loyal friend a man ever had.

She fed upon this hope all day; it was with her when she went to sleep at night. As the dull days began to wheel by she worked hard through every free hour she could find, studying, absorbing, thinking—desperate, almost angry in her determination to fit herself for that meeting, to be worthy of that friendship when it should come. And with every hour of humiliation and determination she grew steadily herself growing stronger and more sober.

Emma, quiet and stern-faced and impersonal, had to concede herself sufficiently like the rest of humankind to succumb to a heavy chest cold when changeable March weather was vexing the city, and for a few days the household was seriously alarmed about her. Her old employer was ill too, and a nurse who had often cared for Mrs. Porter was installed in the rooms of the mistress; there was a second nurse as well to relieve the first. Emma, however, refused any such help and battled her way sternly back to health on her own terms. To Cherry fell much of her domestic responsibility, and except for the few days when Emma was too uncomfortable to talk, she consulted her senior constantly, made lists and wrote notes and took care of Emma.

For the little time that Mrs. Porter needed diversion, her nurses read to her or chatted with her, and Cherry formed the habit of spending the early evening hours with Emma, as Emma grew convalescent. Although the older woman never acknowledged in words that she liked her companion or missed her or waited for her, Cherry grew to enjoy these evenings, and suspected that Emma did, too.

Emma was about 50, but she might have been any age between 30 and 70. Her face was thin, narrow and marked by sternness and reserve. Her graying hair she wore coronet fashion in tight braids in which never a hair was gray. She carried her narrow shoulders high, was almost painfully neat and fresh in appearance and in her speech betrayed the trained nurse's unmistakable attitude.

A strange, cold, repressed woman, Emma used to think, as Emma, belted into a gray wrapper, sat back panting against her pillows and attacked the day's bills, menus, reports. Cherry brought up a lamp that illuminated the ceiling and sent a soft light down for the invalid's eyes, brought up a glass bowl of crocus blossoms and set it on the table, put a Chinese plate of brown bulbs in the shining silver with the dove where Emma could employ times of languor in watching their almost hourly change. And finally, shyly, she brought Emma a tiny kitten, a bundle of wet, waiting fur that she had found by the Presidio wall.

Emma laughed a short, scornful laugh at this last contribution. She never could stand cats, she said. But Cherry, noting the confidence with which the small stray, newly warmed and fed, was advancing toward Emma's languid hand, promised with great confidence that she would remove the little creature the minute he became troublesome.

From that moment the cat was visibly the absorbing consideration of Emma's life, valiantly as she strive to hide her complete capitulation from Cherry. Cappy slept wherever he pleased in the daytime and curled warmly against Emma's shoulder at night. In the evenings when Cherry set up the card table and Emma watched her play solitaire, Cappy walked across the cards between intervals of biting thoughtfully at Emma's hand.

"Did you go first to the Marshbanks as a nurse, Emma?" Cherry asked idly one night. Emma looked at her quickly, hesitated before speaking.

"Yes," she answered then. "I'd taken the boys, Fred and Judson, through tonsil operations, and then through scarlet fever, at the hospital when I was in training. The old lady took a liking to me, and when they'd come back from abroad a few days later and I'd been widowed, the old madame—as we used to call Mrs. Marshbanks, though I don't suppose she was more than 50 then—sent for me to take care of the colonel. He'd been struck down with sleeping sickness; he was on a couch for years. Then Miss Louise—she was the only daughter and had married an engineer from Springfield—came home to have the baby. The old lady was so pleased about it—they both talked so much about the grandchild.

And then to have both die—yes, that was a bad time. What with one thing and another the old lady all but collapsed herself, and we had her in a nervous breakdown for a couple of years.

"I stayed on as a nurse and housekeeper; I had my sister to support, and it was a comfortable place. I wasn't twenty when I graduated and came to them."

"Was my mother a friend of theirs? No, she wasn't," Cherry said, answering herself. "For I remember the judge saying that he had never seen her. How'd you know my mother, Emma? Did you meet her at the Marshbanks?"

Emma looked thoughtfully at her companion. "No; I knew her before that," she finally said. And then, after another pause: "Your mother was my sister Charlotte."

Cherry stared at her. The words did not seem to make sense. "My mother—" she began in a whisper, and stopped.

"Yes. Your mother was my sister. You were named for her. But, Emma," Cherry said breathlessly, confusedly conscious of shock and reluctance, "you never told me."

"Well, you don't always tell children everything," Emma said after a moment. "You weren't but a little thing when your mother died."

"I could have known THAT!" Cherry exclaimed. A thousand bright dreams vanished with the revelation, and she felt hurt and wronged. But amazement still had first place.

"Maybe I never told you because I didn't think you'd be especially pleased," Emma said dryly. The girl's color came up warmly.

"It's not that! Of course I'm—I'm glad," she stammered. "I've never had any family, and—of course I'm glad!"

And, immediately, to her own amazement, she burst into tears. She had often imagined what her connections might be; she had never dreamed this. Emma—so contained and cold and distant—her own aunt! Cherry pushed the table away blindly and went to the window, and stood looking out at the dark night, and the far city lights that shot arrows and flashes through her tears.

"I'm sorry, I was thinking of mother," she presently said. Emma made no comment, and Cherry came back to her seat. She had dried her eyes; but the hands that touched the cards trembled; her throat was thick, and she could not see clearly.

"Mother—mother never told me!" she stammered. "I wish she had!"

Emma had not spoken for some three or four minutes; now she said, in a tone not quite as harsh as her tones sometimes were, "I didn't know how much you remembered your mother, Cherry."

"But I do—lots! I remember getting up on the bed with her after I had my bath at night and her telling me a story."

"I guess you remember Flippy," Emma suggested, always with her own particular effect of grimness and brevity. But Cherry suspected she was trying to lighten the situation.

"My old doll that the dog tore to bits!"

School Dream Comes True In Lee-Vining Nuptial Plans

... WHEN ELIZABETH LEE, of West Point, Ga., was a boarding student at Washington Seminary, one of her most cherished dreams was to walk down the handsome winding stairway in the main hallway as a bride. Each day for the two years she attended the fashionable Peachtree road school, she visualized herself in shimmering white satin as she came down the stairs to her classes. She was graduated in 1940 from the Seminary, and when she bade good-bye to the school authorities she told them that she would come back some day as a bride.

And that is exactly what has happened, for tomorrow Elizabeth is going to realize that schoolgirl dream when she descends the stairway to become the bride of Hull S. Vining, also of West Point!

You see, when Elizabeth decided to marry she wrote to the Seminary's beloved Miss Emma Scott and asked permission to wed at the school, and also for the privilege of having a reception after the ceremony. Miss Emma, as is her usual custom, entered wholeheartedly into the plans and wires have been humming back and forth between Atlanta and West Point making final arrangements for the ceremony, which is scheduled for tomorrow afternoon at 5:30 o'clock. And to make it all the more sentimental and appropriate, Miss Emma has asked to share the role of hostess with Elizabeth's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Lee, of West Point, for the reception. Only members of the bride- and groom-elects' families and close friends have been invited to the affair, which will take place in the parlors of the school.

And here is another interesting angle to the forthcoming nuptials. When Elizabeth was a boarder at the school her roommate was Anne Phillips, of Griffin, who is now Mrs. Henry Swift Jr., of Columbus. Anne will be matron of honor for Elizabeth and the two friends will arrive here this afternoon. They will go straight to the Seminary, where they will spend the night together in the room they once occupied as students!

In addition to Anne, Elizabeth will have Margaret Freeman, of West Point, as her maid of honor, and her fiancé will have his brother, Joe Vining, of Atlanta, as best man. Mr. Lee will give his daughter in marriage, and the Rev. J. T. Robinson, pastor of the Fairburn Methodist church, will officiate.

... EVERYTHING happens to Lillie Shepherd Davis on the sixth of the month! "Shep," as the pretty Decatur belle is known to her intimates, is the fiancée of Dillard Munford, you know, their wedding to be a brilliant event of early fall.

The number 6 came first into the bride-elect's life when her fiancé presented her with a beautiful diamond engagement ring on May 6. (Dillard thoughtfully had the ring engraved with both his name and that of his fiancée and the date May 6.) On July 6 "Shep's" picture appeared in the society section along with the announcement of her betrothal, and on September 6 she will ascend the "middle aisle" to become Dillard's bride.

... IN THE early fall wedding bells will peal for a popular blond Atlantan and her fiancé, who is a doctor assigned by Uncle Sam to duty in South Carolina.

The vivacious and attractive bride-elect graduated from Washington Seminary before attending the University of Georgia, where she became a member of the Chi Omega sorority. Though she has been an admired and sought-after figure since high school days, after her graduation from college she

Heirloom Necklace Accents Bride's Wedding Costume

A strand of pearls which had belonged to her grandmother, the late Mrs. A. L. Hull, of Athens, and has been worn by five brides was the only ornament chosen by Miss May Pope Weltnier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Weltnier, when she became the bride of William Usher Norwood Jr., of Tallahassee, Fla., yesterday afternoon at the First Presbyterian church.

Dr. Richard Orme Flinn read the marriage at 5 o'clock in the presence of a fashionable gathering of Atlantans and out-of-town guests. Dr. Charles Sheldon presented a musical program. Pedestal baskets filled with white gladioli posed against a background of palms formed the church decorations. Candelabra which held lighted white tapers cast a soft glow over the bride party.

Guests were escorted to their places by Jasper N. Dorsey, Richard Hull, Dr. Leslie Morris, and Philip Weltnier Jr., the bride's brother. Acting as best man was Tiffany Turnbull, of Tallahassee, Florida.

The bride's attendants were her sisters, Mrs. Jasper N. Dorsey and Miss Marion Weltnier. Their bouffant gowns of powder blue net were fashioned with lace bodices which featured sweetheart necklines and three-quarter length sleeves. They carried similar bouquets of mixed garden flowers.

Miss Brinsfield Weds R. A. Jakes At Home Rites

Miss Bernice Estelle Brinsfield became the bride of Robert Alexander Jakes at a quiet ceremony taking place at 8:30 o'clock last evening at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Frank Brinsfield, on West Howard street in Decatur.

Rev. W. G. Crawley, former pastor of the bride's family and a close friend, officiated in the presence of the two families and a few close friends. Mrs. S. B. Strout and Mrs. J. D. Wootan presented the music.

The vows were spoken before an improvised altar formed of palms and ferns. Placed before the greenery were baskets of white gladioli and flanking either end were candelabra holding lighted white tapers.

James Weisiger served as best man and John W. Brinsfield acted as groomsmen.

Mrs. John W. Brinsfield was the matron of honor. Miss Frankie Brinsfield was her sister's maid of honor and Miss Mildred Jakes, sister of the groom, was the bridesmaid. Miss Dorothy Brinsfield, another sister of the bride, served as junior bridesmaid. They were gowned alike in models of powder blue marquisette trimmed with matching lace. Their flowers were nosegays of pastel flowers showered with pink and blue ribbons.

The lovely bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was gowned in white mousseline de soie fashioned with a basque bodice and long Bishop sleeves, the full skirt falling into a graceful train. Her tulle veil was caught to a coronet of orange blossoms. She carried a white prayerbook showered with tuberoses and valley lilies.

An informal reception followed the ceremony. Assisting in entertaining were Mesdames Paul D. Nichols, F. E. Coogler, Louis Kalb, J. L. King, J. P. Weisiger, L. A. King and Miss Pauline Nichols.

The lace-covered bride's table was centered with the tiered wedding cake. Silver candelsticks holding lighted white tapers completed the table appointments.

Emory Sigma Chi Plan Rush Fetes

The Sigma Chi fraternity at Emory University will entertain members, rushes and their dates at a steak supper tomorrow evening at their home on Fraternity Row. Steaks will be served around the outdoor rock grill, and supper will be followed by a "singing fest" and later by an informal house dance. Chaperons for the occasion will include Mrs. F. D. Gibson, housemother; Dr. and Mrs. W. B. Redmond, and Dr. R. A. Day.

The Sigma Chi have already completed plans for their rush week festivities, which begin on September 19. The first event will be an old-fashioned hayride and steak fry at the country home of an alumni. Other parties will include a dance at the Marietta Country Club, an Alumni caravan dinner, and a tavern house dance, when the fraternity house will be decorated like an English tavern. Climaxing the events of the week will be the buffet supper and smoker in the main dining room of the Baltimore hotel on September 21.

Boy's Childish Pouting Deserves No Humoring From Girl He Dates

By DIXIE GEORGE.

Dear Dixie:

I have been going with a boy for one year and he seemed to be angry all the time. I never could figure out why. One night we were out together and he said he thought that we should stop going together. I gave up all my other friends for him. I love him very much and would like to win him back. Please tell me what to do.

MISTREATED.

Where you made your big mistake was giving up all your other friends for this one boy, you see now how bad it is for a girl to do that. If he seemed angry all the time, he does not sound as though he would be very good company. If I were you I would not be very interested in trying to win him again. He has told you that he is ready to quit. If, in your wildest dreams you hope to win him again, do not let him know that his ultimatum has hurt you in any way. Let him think that your heart agrees with him, and do not wear out your sleeve. If you cry, tear your hair and wring your hands over the separation it will do you more harm than good, even though your heart may be breaking. I think that you will have to assume an indifferent, independent attitude to win him back. Next time you go out with him and he begins to seem angry, then tell him that unless he can be more pleasant you do not want to see him. Of course, in a way, he had beaten you to the draw, but you can at least have the last word. If he likes you he will change his disposition.

OBVIOUS METHODS DEFEAT GIRL'S PURPOSE

Dear Dixie:

I go with a boy whose brother has a birthday this month. I asked for his address, so that I could send him a birthday card. If my mother found this out I know she would punish me, and I want to know if you think it will be all right for me to send him the card? I am doing this to attract his attention because I think he is so attractive. I see him every day where he works and he always stares at me as though he would like to go out with me.

JUST YOUNG.

Well, at least you have a different method of approach. I think it would be unwise to send the birthday card to the boy unless you know him. I feel sure that he would think it rather strange, and I do not believe he would appreciate it very much coming from a stranger. I think that if you want to meet him so much that it could be arranged through the brother. If you want to attract his attention, you had better not be too obvious about it. When he wants to meet you he will, and if he wants to date you he will. Boys can always arrange to meet the girls they want to date.

Turban Set Adds Color To Wardrobe

A matching purse and turban to wake an envious gleam in a friend's eye—and none will guess you made the set yourself!

A mere half yard of 40-inch silk or wool jersey is needed for the chic turban which carries you so gaily into fall. Try tangerine red to liven beiges and browns; fuchsia to smarten blues, black!

Start by cutting out a 16-by-40-inch strip of fabric. Fold lengthwise and sew across one end. Then press open seam and gather on seam with strong thread. Pull gathers to two inches, fasten thread securely.

Now cut material lengthwise on the fold to within 8-12 inches of gathers. Round the ends, hem the edges and your turban's ready to put on. Place gathered part in front, tie ends in way most becoming to you.

The foundation of your smart bag is just two pieces of material (each 7-12 by 17 inches) which are sewn together, reinforced with buckram and lined. To the front sew a piece which you've shirred over 3 lengths of cable cord.

Complete directions for the turban and purse are given in our new 40-page booklet, DRESS ACCESSORIES YOU CAN MAKE. Send 15c in coins for our booklet, DRESS ACCESSORIES YOU CAN MAKE, to Home Institute, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

MY DAY: Youth Evaluates Future Occupations

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

HYDE PARK, Wednesday.—After our visit to the Pioneer Youth Camp yesterday, we motored on to Camp William James. There, a group of young people are trying to find out the value of working at their own hands. At the same time, they are deciding their evaluation of future occupations.

They want to know what they really do want out of life, what they think democracy means, what they can do to help develop their country and make it strong in democratic principles.

Some of the young people who worked here are at present working in Mexico with a group of young Mexicans in the territory where the earthquake created such havoc. Others are now in the Army, but wherever they go, they carry with them the results of this experience. I think they will lead more interesting lives, because they have set themselves to find the reasons for their beliefs and to translate into daily living their ideas and ideals.

The drive up was very beautiful and we found another route to follow coming down, which gave us a variety of scenery.

Last February there was held in Washington an institute of Rural Youth Guidance. In this institute the following organizations co-operated: The Alliance for the Guidance of Rural Youth, the American Youth Commission, the Harlan County (Ky.) Planning Council, the National Education Association, the National Youth Administration, the United States Department of Agriculture, the United States Employment service, the United States Office of Education.

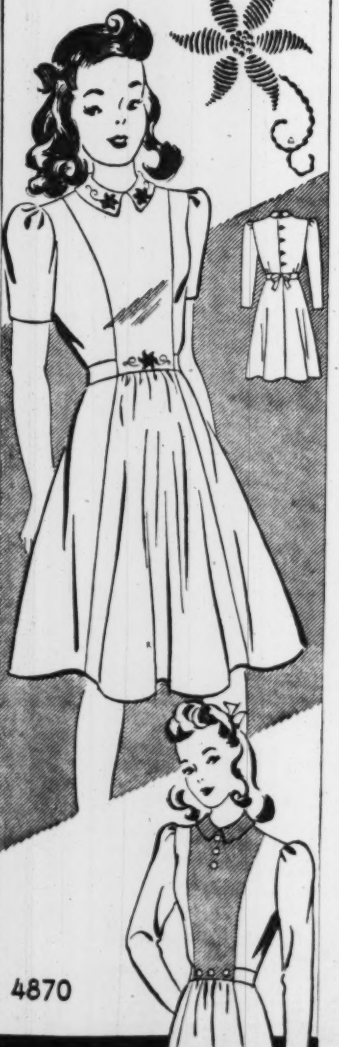

I have just received a report of the proceedings and a "suggested plan of action." These pamphlets are going to be distributed in various parts of the country. I hope that many newspapers in rural areas, particularly the country weekly papers, will quote many of the recommendations.

There is a great deal of emphasis laid on the possibilities in selective service for training which may be given these young men while in the Army, which will be valuable to them when they return to civilian life. I know that this is true, for one boy from my own county writes me that he has been assigned to radio work, which is something he has wanted to study for a long time. Let us hope that this will be the experience of many of the boys now being inducted into service from rural areas.

Pamper the Yen for Luxury With Spicy Bath Powder

By Winifred Ware.

Right now most of us have as our main interest in life keeping cool. There are worlds of ways in which we can make our days more comfortable. We all know that showers and tub baths cool us off wonderfully, but it doesn't last long enough. A way to preserve that deliciously refreshed feeling is to dust powder over your body from top to toe after bathing.

There is one delightful bath powder which is cooling not only as a powder, but also because of its inspiring perfume. It isn't heavy or too sweet, but instead is light and lifting, slightly spicy.

Somehow using powder after your bath keeps away that sticky feeling. Your clothes slip on easily and the powder tends to absorb moisture for some time.

This powder comes packaged in a handsome pink and white box which you'll be proud to see in your bath room. There's enough to last you the rest of the summer, too, in this big dollar box.

I'll be glad to tell you the powder I have in mind, where you can find it, if you'll call me at Walnut 6565 or write me in care of The Constitution, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Hopeless Attitude Defeats Reducing

By Ida Jean Kain.

The more hopeless you feel about your figure, the harder it is for you to get started with your slimming. You may honestly doubt that much can be done. For a psychological push in the right direction nothing beats a checkup on the other reducers—and they've been doing very well.

The report from an Oklahoman should be a real inspiration to anyone who is underweight and who feels under par.

"When I started dieting and exercising," she writes, "I weighed 180 pounds and was sick all the time. Now I am down to 150 pounds and feel grand. The exercise and diet were a great help to my health, and my looks. I used to have a 38 bust and 46-inch hips and now I can slip into a size 38 without alterations. I am going to lose 10 more pounds and think that will be enough, as I am five feet, five inches tall. And, by the way, I am 52 years old."

Her story is matched by that of a Philadelphian who writes: "On February 22, I asked for your reducing diet. On that date, I weighed 141 pounds for my height of five feet. Today I am down to 110 pounds and feel and look fine. Now I want to know how I can keep my new figure."

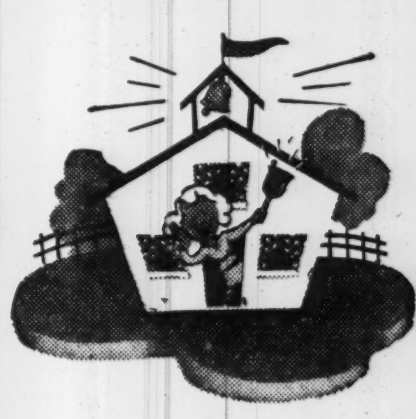

For all of you who want to know, the answer to that is: Base your menus on the protective foods with a few hundred calories added to bring the allowance up to your maintenance level so that you neither gain nor lose. Any time you gain a pound, you have been taking more calories than you can use in energy and should drop down a little. A small amount of exercise is necessary right along to keep your muscles in tone and to stabilize your weight.

Once you get into the swing of a reducing program it is comparatively easy. But even if you were a struggle every pound you lose, it would still be worth while. As these reducers testify, your health and appearance improve remarkably on a program of balanced diet and specific exercise.

Send large, stamped return envelope for Ida Jean Kain's new "Ten-Day Diet To Lose Five Pounds." Main request to Miss Kain, The Constitution, Atlanta, Georgia.

16 Teams Open Play in Atlanta Amateur Baseball Meet Today

All in the Game
BY JACK TROY

Justice Triumphs Every now and then comes justification for a belief that a baseball player has been wronged. When Eddie Lukon failed to make the All-Star team and had to get on as an alternate, those of us who voted for him screamed to high heaven. We didn't consider it a personal affront, or anything like that, but rather an injustice to a star outfielder.

When Lukon was sold to the Cincinnati Reds not so very long ago and was immediately put in the lineup of the World Champions by Manager Bill McKechnie, there was a strong temptation to say "we told you so."

We had another violent objection to the All-Star outfield. And that other plaintiff had to do with leaving Cully Rikard off entirely. Cully is center fielder of the Memphis Chicks and a whale of a ball player. At the time he was left off and Mike Dejan, of Birmingham, put on the All-Star team, Rikard, in many departments, had a better record than Dejan.

All we can say today is that Dejan is riding the Birmingham bench, and while Memphis is in and out of the cellar, Rikard still is a very consistent outfielder.

Zipp (Birmingham News) Newman, commenting on Ki Ki Cuyler's sudden departure to Chicago for the purpose of helping the Cub hitters to hit, said: "Too bad Mike Dejan didn't get Cuyler to give him a couple of lessons before Ki Ki got out of the league."

It's also unfortunate someone didn't give some of the Red officials a few lessons in scouting before they laid out $30,000 cash for Dejan midway of last season. He virtually won the Southern League batting championship riding the bench at Birmingham.

He never got going after he was returned by the Reds.

Johnson Concedes Larry Gilbert may not have given up hope of overtaking the Crackers, but the Nashville Tennessean's Raymond Johnson has. Story in the Tennessean is headed: "Gilbert Points Ahead for Playoff."

The story says that "Larry Gilbert's pennant hopes vanished with all the injuries that have smitten the Vols, but if the three latest additions to his hurling staff come through as expected, the 1940 champions are going to be plenty troublesome in the Shaughnessy playoffs."

"Larry is counting heavily on Gassaway, Tamulis, Lawson, Meers and Jeffcoat as a big five of the pitching staff for the playoffs."

Johnson let it go here, and, in turning to his regular column, it was interesting to find him writing about football.

Old Raymond delved into statistics a bit and came up with the fact that 32 college eleven will have new coaches next season and that missing from the football picture will be such old-timers as Howard Jones, Major Bob Neyland,

Oakland Starts Title Defense Against Cafe

Ponce de Leon, Glenn, Fulton, Clarkdale Sites for Twin Bills.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY. Shootin' in the third annual Atlanta Amateur Baseball Federation tournament will start today when 16 league winners and runners-up charge into one another on four widely scattered fields for the right to represent Atlanta in the National Amateur World Series in September.

Double-heders are scheduled at Ponce de Leon Park, Fulton Bag, Clarkdale and Glenn Field as the clubs open play in the big double-elimination meet. Feature program of the opening round will be played at Ponce de Leon, the first contest at 2:30, when Georgia Power tackles Lawson General Hospital.

The night-cap will send Central Cafe's little-favored nine against Oakland City's scrappy defending champs at 4:30 o'clock.

NIX TO HURL. Manager Harold Bishop indicated yesterday he will send Lefty Cene Nix, ex-Bufford star, to the hill against Oakland City in an effort to get off to a good start in his strongest bid for an Atlanta championship. Shorty Peacock, Oakland City pilot, is expected to counter with Tommy Sorrow, who already this season has turned in two and three-hit games against Central, although he lost them both.

Millard "Whitey" Hayes, ex-Cracker star, will be on the mound for the Power Company against Lawson General Hospital, which will pitch one of the real stars of the city, Dick Douthat, now in the Army, but winner of 19 games in the Class B Interstate League last season.

Another red-hot hurling duel is in prospect at Clarkdale at 4:30 when Larry Miller, who pitched for Atlanta last year, faces Jake Williams, who Marietta battles Clarkdale. Williams is uncured in his last two games, one being a no-hitter.

Another game at Clarkdale pits Whittier Mills, last year's runner-up, against Villa Rica at 2:30 o'clock.

COBB VS. GASTON. Post Office will play W. O. Pierce Dairy of Chamblee at 2:30 at Fulton Bag. Lefty Darwin Cobb, ex-professional star, probably will face Joe Gaston, Georgia freshman left-hander, on the mound.

At 4:30, Fulton Bag will tackle General Shoe at the same place. Fulton Bag won the first tournament two years ago but barely managed to qualify for this meet. White Provision plays Commerce at 2:30 at Glenn Field and Army Shirts and Southern Railway meet at 4:30.

Two defeats are necessary to eliminate a team. Losers will play losers and winners will tackle winners, so they'll really be playing for keeps. Eight more games are scheduled Saturday with six Sunday.

Games will be played rain or shine as it will be necessary to complete the tourney next week. Only impossible weather conditions will cause postponement, officials announced yesterday.

Today's complete program: At Ponce de Leon (umpires, Shi and Dowd): 2:30, Georgia Power vs. Lawson General Hospital; 4:30, Central Cafe vs. Oakland City.

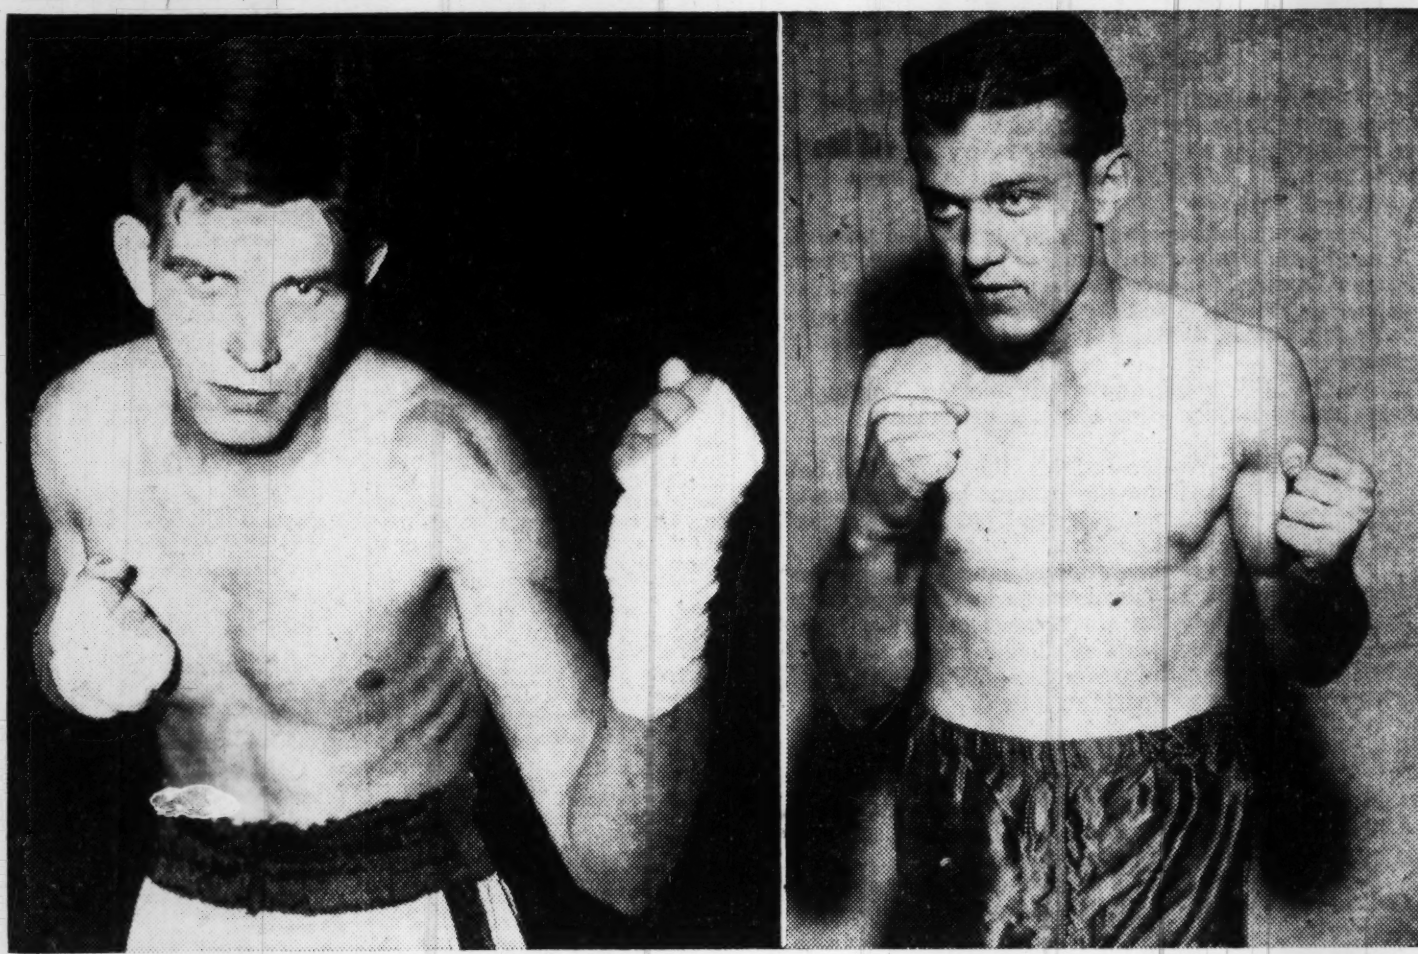

At Fulton Bag (umpires, Pressly and McMillan): 2:30, Post Office vs. W. O. Pierce Dairy; 4:30, Fulton Bag vs. General Shoe.

At Clarkdale (umpires, Moon and Williams): 2:30, Whittier Mills vs. Villa Rica; 4:30, Clarkdale vs. Marietta.

At Glenn Field (umpires, Brown and Morrow): 2:30, White Provision vs. Commerce; 4:30, Arrow Shirts vs. Southern Railway.

The six-foot 200-pounder, whose father, Hamilton McWhorter, was a baseball standout at Georgia, has played football at Bakersfield Junior College in California for the last two years. He will be eligible for the Alabama varsity.

ONE OF HEADLINERS—Dot Roughton (left), of Perry, Ga., and Lonnie Clark (right), pride of the Atlanta Boys' Club, will collide in one of the features on tonight's 36-round show at Lakewood. Clark won an unpopular decision over his welterweight opponent two weeks ago.

Tonight's mammoth show, starting at 8:30, is sponsored by the Kiwanis Club's Underprivileged Child's Committee. Regular amateur prices will prevail.

36-Round Fight Show Is Scheduled Tonight

Lakewood Show Promises New High in Entertainment, With Profits Going to Worthy Cause.

By THAD HOLT.

The kind of action that will thrill any red-blooded American is promised tonight at Lakewood Park, where some of the south's finest amateur fighters square away for a 36-round show which promises to set a new high for ring entertainment.

All profits from the mammoth show go to the Atlanta Kiwanis Club's Underprivileged Child's Committee, which in turn will continue to supply milk to undernourished Atlanta children.

Old John S. Blick has lined up a fight card which will pair off nifty punchers all the way from the bantamweight through to the heavyweight divisions. Fighters from Fort Benning, Macon, Piedmont College, Perry and Atlanta will throw the leather.

Every boy on the show is in condition for a tough fight. Each lad of the 24 who will see action has won his spurs in Golden Glove and amateur competition.

GOOD SCRAPPS. Just to name a few of the more promising fights there will be the heavyweight duel between Benning's Ace Corley and Atlanta's W. L. (Punchy) Pickard; Atlanta's Lonnie Clark and Dot Roughton, the Perry, Ga., star, who thinks he beat Lonnie once before, despite the decision of the judges; the middleweight tussle involving Fort Benning's Daniel Allen and Gainesville's Johnny Miller.

They'll all be good. These boys are fighting because they like to fight. They were especially selected by Blick because they know how.

Regular Lakewood prices, those which have been in effect for all shows this summer, will again be featured. It's a regular Madison Square Garden lineup. And, of course, all the profits go to a worthy cause.

Frankie Allen will be one of the referees. His services are donated. The other officials give theirs.

Station WATL will broadcast the action, beginning at 8:30. Atlanta's Rainbow Girls' drill team will sell tickets and serve as ushers.

Mike Benton has put Lakewood park at the Kiwanis Club's disposal—free of charge.

Tommy Barnes Paces Qualifiers

Six-Under-Par Score Is Fired By State Titlist

Dahlbender, Blum, Caye Also Win Places in National Amateur.

By AL SHARP.

Tommy Barnes, Atlanta star who recently won his first state amateur title, carved his initials on his second national amateur sectional qualifying medal in a row yesterday with 69-67-136 over the East Lake No. 1 course.

Barnes had nine birdies and three bogeys in his 6-under-par total which led Gene Dahlbender, Arnold Blum, of Macon, and Billy Caye in qualifying for the tournament to be held at Omaha, Neb., August 25-30.

Dahlbender, 17-year-old Atlanta open champion, was second with 72-70-142; Blum, 19-year-old University of Georgia student, third with 72-73-145, and Caye, 20-year-old Atlantan, fourth with 81-72-153.

ALL PLAN TO GO.

All four plan to make the trip to the national tourney. Bob Lynch became the first alternate with 80-74-154 and Dick Garlington, second alternate, with 80-75-155. Neither expects to go if one of the original foursome drops out. So Carling Dinkler Jr., who had 77-79-156, may get in on the trip.

Barnes missed only seven greens out of 26, and most of his birdies were made the easy way. He had 30 putts on each 18 holes, divided evenly on the first round and adding up 13-17 on the afternoon trip.

It was his sixth success at qualifying in as many years. He paced the field last year with 143. His total of 136 may be the lowest in the nation; it certainly will be among the lowest.

While a field of 12—there were eight withdrawals—were shooting here, almost 600 players scattered from coast to coast were seeking their share of the 137 places open. All the returns probably won't be available until in the morning.

The qualifying of the three Atlantans here will give the city four representatives in the meet. Charlie Yates, now in the Army at Camp Wheeler, having been exempted from sectional qualifying.

HAS 3 STRAIGHT BIRDIES.

Outstanding highlight of Barnes' shooting was his string of birdies on the first nine in the afternoon. He had three in a row, sinking a 12-footer at the 7th, a 2-foot putt at the 8th and a foot putt at the 9th for a 33. He added a 34 with eight pars and a birdie on the back nine, where he putted at birdies on every hole.

In the morning, Tommy put together 35-34 for the 69. His total was one of the lowest scored at the course in competition. Tommy Wright, former Knoxville pro had 64-68-132 qualifying for the national open a few years ago, and Dahlbender shot 70-65-135 to win the city open this year.

Dahlbender, after firing a 1-over-par 72 in the morning, went out in par 36 in the afternoon. He cut loose with four birdies on five holes starting at the eleventh in the afternoon, but dropped three strokes to par on the last three holes with bogeys. His birdies dropped at the eleventh, twelfth, fourteenth and fifteenth holes.

CAYE RALLIES.

Blum shot consistent golf for his 145, but Caye had to step on it in the afternoon. After taking that 81, Caye, who the pros will

NATIONAL QUALIFIERS—Three Atlantans and a Macon player qualified here yesterday for the National Amateur golf tournament. They are, left to right, Billy Caye, Gene Dahlbender, Arnold Blum, of Macon, and Tommy Barnes, who is holding the medal he won for leading the field with 69-67-136, which will be one of the lowest scores, if not the lowest, in the nation.

Donald Floyd Upsets Top-Seeded Buffington

Don Floyd, No. 1 man on the strong Georgia Evening College team, is rapidly becoming the giant killer of Atlanta tennis.

The hard-fighting shotmaker yesterday eliminated Don Buffington, top-seeded player, from the Georgia State tournament, 2-6, 6-3, 6-4, to enter the quarter-finals. The match started in daylight but finished under the lights at the Northside Tennis Club.

Floyd's steadiness proved the telling factor. Time and again he forced the top-ranked player into errors and it was an erratic backhand which wouldn't behave all the while that cost the Duke star the match. He netted a ball off his backhand on the match point.

FLOYD BATTLES. Floyd battled gamely throughout and came back after suffering a severe leg cramp in the final set.

Other seeded stars advanced without undue trouble. Third-ranked Jack Teagle defeated Charlie Rice, 6-0, 6-1; Fourth-seeded Jack Bushman, of Columbus, whipped Charles Lindsey, 6-0, 6-1; Fifth-ranked Malon Courts conquered Nat Collins, 6-3, 6-2; Frank Willett, No. 6, of Anniston, Ala., eliminated Cortes Suttles, 6-2, 6-4; and Eighth-ranked Hank Crawford whipped T. A. Slaughter, 6-3, 6-3.

Three of the four seeded players in the ladies' singles advanced. Mrs. J. J. Schiffelin, No. 4, defeated Eleanor Plaxico, 6-2, 6-3; Second-seeded Etta Coyne edged Virginia Robson, 7-5, 6-4; and Third-seeded Florence Camp beat Barbara Strongmiller, of Asheville, N. C., 6-1, 6-1.

MADDOX BEATS FOWLER. In the junior singles, Second-ranked Carl Maddox defeated T. W. Fowler, 6-3, 6-3.

Quarter-finals will be played today, semi-finals Saturday and finals on Sunday.

Other results: Junior singles—Bob Bushman, Columbus, defeated Bill Wansker, Macon, 6-3, 6-2; Mixed doubles—Metcalfe-Corrigan defeated Littlejohn-Brown, 6-2, 6-1; Coyne-Collins defeated Williamson-Williamson, 6-1, 6-0.

Ladies' singles—Charlotte Padgett defeated Tommy Mason, 6-1, 6-4; Men's doubles—Millsap and Dennis defeated Ludy-Broome, 6-3, 6-4.

Schedule of matches today: 10:00—Maddox vs. Bushman, Strongmiller-Dennis vs. Padgett-Wansker. 3:00—Blake-Hewitt vs. Corrigan-Dick, Mary Jane Metcalfe vs. Charlotte Padgett. 4:00—Bushman vs. Corrigan-Dick, Strongmiller-Dennis Padgett-Wansker vs. Metcalfe-Corrigan.

9:00—Courts vs. Teagle, Floyd vs. Hewitt, Crawford vs. Nicholson, Jones-Orr vs. Bushman-Bushman, Allen-Chambers vs. Schiffelin-Franklin, Stacy-Conner vs. Tuglies-McConnell.

6:00—Suttles-Crawford vs. Manley-Dundley, Courts-Enloe vs. Millsap-Dennis; winners, Blake-Hewitt Corrigan-Dick, Camp-Floyd vs. Robson-Coyne; winner, Stacy-Conner; Tuglies-McConnell vs. Coyne-Collins; Buffington-Willett vs. Seisley-Rice; Teagle-Maddox vs. Gault-Chambers.

Gasoline Shortage May Hurt Racing

TAMPA, Fla., Aug. 14.—(P)—Despite a threat of gasoline rationing that some track representatives fear may wreck the Florida winter racing program and a new state tax on horse bets, the Florida racing commission opened a two-day meeting here today to plan for a normal winter season.

"Miami is scared to death," said one track representative. "It may wreck racing," said another. It was explained that Miami gets a great majority of its winter visitors by train and plane, but most of them depend on automobile transportation after they get there. Horse and dog tracks and Jai Alai Fronton are some distance from the heart of Miami and Miami Beach.

If racing is hurt it was pointed out that the state's old assistance program to which the horse tracks are expected to contribute $2,000,000 in new taxes on wagers, also will receive a serious setback.

Canton Meet Opens Today; Rion Medalist

15 Atlantans Entered in Annual Invitation Golf Tourney.

CANTON, Ga., Aug. 14.—Sixty-five golfers, including 15 Atlantans, will start battling for trophies and prizes in the annual Canton invitation tournament here tomorrow. Two matches are scheduled on the opening day of play.

Don Rion, of Athens, took the medal with a 74, and he is paired with Harold Florence, of Cedartown. Dallas Weaver, defending champion from Cedartown, will meet Paul Gurley, of Cartersville.

Other championship flight pairings: Bill Little, Marietta, vs. Ed Dugan, Cedartown; Carling Dinkler Jr., Atlanta, vs. Bud Bicknell, Atlanta; Ralph Brown, Cartersville, vs. Dr. Julius Hughes, Atlanta; Gene Gaillard, Atlanta, vs. Bobby Dodd, Atlanta; Ed Barnes, Atlanta, vs. Tyre Jones, Canton; John Pickett, Cedartown, vs. Ben Jones, Canton.

The tournament will continue through Saturday and Sunday.

Clowns Nip Buford in Denver Finals

DENVER, Colo., Aug. 14.—Buford's Shoemakers lost out in the finals of the Denver Post semi-pro tournament, here last night, dividing a pair of games with the Ethiopian Clowns. Buford won the first game, 3-1, behind Boots Poffenberger, but lost the nightcap, 9-7, after holding a 5-3 lead going into the ninth.

DUKE ACE WINS.

TAMPA, Fla., Aug. 14.—(P)—Grover D. Poole, ace shot-maker from Duke University, paced the field in the Florida qualifying for the national amateur golf championship, today, when he fired a 75-68-143 at the Palma Ceia Club.

Nothing Can Stop Rabid Dodger Fan

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—(UP)—It is probably true, as the cop on the beat said, that "only a Dodger fan could do it."

Sol Gurtenstein, 21, got to "bells field at 10 a. m., in plenty of time for any of a Dodgers-Giant game, and found the bleachers filled. No man to talk at trifles, he began to climb a drainpipe. At the top of the wall he slipped and fell, suffering a broken leg.

His only request at Kings county hospital was: "Turn on the radio. I want to hear the game."

Plane Reported 'Down' Eludes Search Parties

'Missing Army Bomber' Stirs Frantic Hunt; That Is All.

By ROLFE EDMUNDSON. The mystery of the missing Army bomber was still a mystery last night.

A low-flying silver ship, seen over Douglasville, Austell and Lithia Springs, in fact all over the eastern section of Douglas county, shortly before noon yesterday, caused searching parties to comb the area on foot, horseback, by car and by airplane, but no trace of a wrecked ship could be found.

Airplanes, state and county police, soldiers, Douglas county officials, the Douglasville fire department, ambulance drivers, newspaper reporters, photographers and just plain citizens participated in the search, plowing through fields and roads that would have made ideal golf ponds, but no trace of a missing plane could be found.

An Army sergeant, who said he was stationed in the communications office at Candler Field, told the excited searchers the ship was a twin-motored attack bomber out of Birmingham, and that the ship was due to land at Candler Field about noon.

Many Reports. First reports had the ship crashing on the Nunnally farm about a mile and a half east of Douglasville. Excited residents of the farm told the searchers that the ship flew so low over the plantation that it took the top out of one tall tree.

A second report had the ship down on the Donnelly farm 4.2 miles southeast of Douglasville, on the Fairburn-Douglasville highway.

With a hook and ladder truck leading the parade, a varied but muddy assortment of vehicles took off for the new reported scene of the crash.

Splashing and skidding through the muddy roads, the searchers, sometimes reaching the daring speed of 12 miles an hour, advanced on the Donnelly farm.

"We saw him," an excited youth told the truckload of firemen. "He was flying so low you could almost see the color of the pilot's eyes."

"Yes, sir, he went right over there, and his motor was skipping and knocking. He can't be far from here."

Planes Join Search.

By that time two airplanes, said to have been from Candler Field, arrived overhead.

Flying low, they circled the area for about two hours.

Finally the planes gave up the search and returned to their landing field.

Then the fire truck also abandoned the search, and was returned to a shed in Douglasville, immediately next door to the sheriff's residence, where it was locked inside the building.

When the firemen gave up the search, Douglas county citizens and policemen who had also participated decided to give up.

At Candler Field, Army officials insisted all ships were present or accounted for, and were unable to explain why any pilot should be flying low over Douglas county.

Army Needs Men To Keep Planes Flying

Air Corps Vacancies Exist at Four Southern Fields.

"The Army has lots of planes and needs lots of good men to keep 'em flying," Technical Sergeant Cecil Hayes, United States Army Recruiting Station in the new post office building, announced yesterday.

"There are 28 phases of technical training in the Air Corps for enlisted men," Sergeant Hayes said. "The schools include airplane mechanics, aircraft armor, engine mechanics, radio operators, weather observers, bomb-sight maintenance, carburetor study, photography and many other technical courses."

"Vacancies for Air Corps assignments exist," he said, "at Craig Field, Selma, Ala.; Kessler Field, Biloxi, Miss.; Ellington Field, Texas, and Barksdale Field, La."

Sergeant Hayes pointed out requirements are simple. Applicants must be unmarried, between the ages of 18 and 35 years, possess an eighth grade education or better and meet physical and mental requirements.

Atlantan's Book Reaches England

Regional Forester Joseph C. Kircher, of the Atlanta office of the United States Forestry Service, yesterday received an acknowledgment of the safe arrival in England of a book dispatched by him to the Imperial Forestry Institute in Oxford.

Another copy of the book, mailed earlier this year, failed to reach its destination and is believed to have been a casualty of the Battle of the Atlantic.

The book is a technical publication called "Forestry in Relation to Agriculture," and presents improved methods for managing farm woodlands with a view to greater yields of forest products.

Bank Reports Indicate Rise In State Trade

Great Increase Is Seen in Total Resources.

A general upswing in business circles is indicated by the report of the consolidated statement showing condition of 235 state banks and eight branches in Georgia as of June 30, disclosing total resources amounting to $239,340,689.65 compared with a total of $199,218,960.68 on June 29, 1940.

O. G. Jackson, assistant superintendent of state banks, announced yesterday.

The report showed that deposits have increased during the period approximately $34,500,000 with increase in surplus, profits and reserve funds, aggregating approximately $1,200,000.

It was also pointed out that the cash position of banks representing legal reserves and other available cash has increased over $17,000,000 during the year and amounts invested in government bonds, state of Georgia bonds and other securities has increased approximately $500,000.

City Restrained From Halting Night Gas Sales

Commission Sets About Closing Filling Stations in County.

The city of Atlanta yesterday was temporarily restrained from preventing Claude C. Mason Jr., operator of two filling stations, from selling gasoline to commercial users nights and Sunday mornings, while the Fulton county commission set about closing filling stations in the county outside the city as a means of co-operation in the gas shortage.

Mason, trading as the Claude Mason Tire Company, obtained a temporary injunction against the city and Chief M. A. Hornsby yesterday from Judge Paul S. Etheridge Sr., to start the first test case of the city's ordinance requiring closing of filling stations from 7 o'clock each night to 7 o'clock each morning and on Sundays until 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

At the same time, it was evident that an amendment to the city's ordinance to require closing of filling stations all day Sundays would be introduced at city council's session Monday afternoon, with favorable chances for passage. Filling station operators urged three to one to close all day Sundays, Jimmy Robinson, president of the Georgia Association of Retail Petroleum Dealers, told the county commissioners.

The commissioners, in special session, adopted resolutions calling on all filling stations in the county and in municipalities in the county to close the same hours that Atlanta stations "black out" to co-operate with the national government.

They asked Commissioner Scott Candler, of DeKalb county, to make the same requests of stations in his county.

Mayor LeCraw told the Fulton commissioners the city and the county have the right to close all filling stations all day Sunday night—the Sunday "blue" law.

Mason, through his attorney, Ralph Quillian, told the court he sold principally to commercial users of gas and Judge Etheridge restrained the police from arresting him, or prosecuting a case already made and pending in recorder's court, until a hearing is held August 22 on the petition for a permanent injunction. The judge's restraining order permits Mason to sell gas to commercial users but not to non-commercial users.
